Defense Official Visits Brigade On Kaneohe Tour

Deputy Secretary of Defense Reuben B. Robertson made a brief inspection tour of the 1st Marine Brigade, FMF, and the Air Station here Monday afternoon.

The high defense official stopped in the islands yesterday after a 3 1/2 week visit to U.S. military installations in the Far East.

Arriving here early Monday afternoon by Marine aircraft, Mr. Robertson and party were whisked to a luncheon at Kansas Tower. He was accompanied by Maj. Gen. J. P. Riseley, Deputy Commander, Fleet Marine Force Pacific, Mr. Charles G. Ellington, a special civilian assistant, and his military assistant Capt. James W. O'Grady USN.

Brig. Gen. Edward C. Dyer, Brigade Commander and Col. William B. Steiner, Air Station commanding officer, pointed out various activities from the central vantage point, just prior to the luncheon. Following this, FMF Pacific and Brigade officers briefed the Deputy Secretary on the functions of the two Marine units.

After luncheon the Deputy Secretary of Defense and his party were taken on a working tour of the Air Station during which the flight operations of Marine Aircraft Group 13 and the field training of the 4th Marines (Reinf.) were witnessed by Mr. Robertson, and their training program was explained.

MAG-13 activities displayed for Mr. Robertson included a napalm bombing demonstration offshore by jet fighters and an ordnance loading of prop-driven fighters along the field's taxiway.

During the course of the afternoon, the 4th Marines (Reinf.) held rocket and flamethrower firing, water driving by DUKWs and LVTs, combat conditioning, a formal guard mount, dry net training, shore party loading, gun drill and artillery camouflage and practiced setting up and simulated firing of 81mm mortars near the main gate.

Mr. Robertson also made an uncheduled stop at the Station's Little League ball park where he met some of the youthful players.

Mr. Robertson concluded his visit at 4 p.m.

1st Brigade Commander To Be Honored By MCAS Parade, Review Saturday

Brig. Gen. E. C. Dyer, Commanding General of the 1st Marine Brigade, FMF, will be honored with a full parade and review here tomorrow morning on Dewey Square at 9 a.m. by Air Station personnel.

Gen. Dyer will be detached from the Brigade later this month. His new post will be assistant Director of Marine Corps Aviation at Headquarters, Marine Corps.

As one of the Marine Corps' foremost authorities on aviation, Gen. Dyer pioneered the development of night fighters, air warning systems, and use of helicopters. He commanded the first Marine Corps helicopter squadron.

Brig. Gen. Dyer, then a colonel, assumed command of the 1st Provisional Marine Air-Ground Task Force Oct. 15, 1954. Arriving here from Headquarters, Marine Corps, Gen. Dyer relieved Col. Boeker C. Batterton who was ordered to duty at MCAS, Miami, Fla.

As Task Force commander, Gen. Dyer was advanced to his present rank in April 1955. In May of the current year, Gen. Dyer accepted the battle color with battle streamers of the 1st Marine Brigade, when his command was redesignated.

A gun salute will be fired from the saluting battery by Station ordnance.

Maj. R. H. Cook will be Battalion Commander for the parade with Capt. J. B. Cox the Field Adjutant. "B" Co. has been designated Color Company.

Women Marines of WMD-3 will join with Naval personnel in forming "E" Co., while Marine officers and master sergeants who are unassigned will form an Officers Platoon and Master Sergeants Platoon.

A complete rehearsal is scheduled for this afternoon.

Brigade Plans Realistic Show For Navy Guests

Guests of the Secretary of the Navy, who will be aboard the Air Station next Wed., June 6, will see a demonstration of 1st Marine Brigade, FMF, fire power beyond the pale of anything Hollywood might devise, if current plans are followed.

Imaginative striving for realism combined with a paramount regard for safety, promises that an indelible picture of the Marine air-ground team in action will be carried away by spectators.

Created as a training medium to depict the Marine Corps system of close air support, supporting arms, and fire power, the show will include a "live firing" exhibition and supporting arms demonstration near the end of runway 36, preceded by a static display of aircraft and ordnance at Hanger 105.

Arriving Monday aboard the heavy cruiser USS ROCHESTER, the guests are 14 mainland business and professional men who are making a goodwill tour of naval activities on Oahu.

Guests include: Stuart D. Baker, Seattle attorney; George B. Hill, publisher, Coalgate, Okla.; Leo S. Ross, appraiser, Yakima, Wash.; Everett G. Shively, shoe store owner, Merced, Calif.

Edwin W. Wade, merchant, Long Beach, Calif.; Donald M. Russell, banker, Yakima, Wash.; Robert McNulty, president of a cab company, Long Beach, Calif.; Ralph R. Biennu, publisher, Abbeville, La.

Charles R. Blyth, investments, San Francisco; Grandville S. Borden, attorney, San Francisco; William H. Clark, radio station manager, Joplin, Mo.; Rodney M. Fairfield, attorney, St. Louis, Mo.; Roland L. Hill, merchant, Minneapolis, Minn.; and Thomas J. McGlynn, abstractor, Red Bluff, Calif.

The Navy Secretary's guests are scheduled to arrive here from Camp Smith at 10:45 a.m. Wed., and will be met at the main gate by Brig. Gen. E. C. Dyer, or his representative. From the main gate they will go to Hanger 105 where they will see a display of aircraft and ordnance arranged by MAG-13.

From the hangar, guests will be escorted to the north end of runway 36, where they will watch a live firing demonstration by weapons of the 4th Marines (Reinf.) and 3rd Bn, 12th Marines. This demonstration will be concluded with one-half minute of concentrated fire from all weapons.

Following the firing demonstration, the guests will have luncheon at the 4th Marines (Reinf.) mess hall, after stopping at BOQ.

After lunch the party will drive to Kansas Tower for a view of the Air Station and to witness the air- (See BRIGADE PLANS P-2)

Sober Rituals Honor War Dead As Oahu Observes Memorial Day

Long an occasion for sober observances in memory of those who have given their lives in service of the Stars and Stripes, Memorial Day was observed with solemn dignity here last Wed., with Kaneohe Marines taking part in several ceremonies both on the MCAS and in Honolulu.

In a ceremony marked by ritual, members of Branch 174, Fleet Reserve Association, joined with the station's Boy Scout Troop 225, to give their traditional salute in honor of the day.

Assembled with their guests near the Station boathouse, the members conducted a brief ceremony which began with an invocation by MSgt William A. Zahn, branch chaplain, of VMF-232, MAG-13. The invocation was followed by a short address, given by MSgt Albert S. Freytag, branch president of Hq&HqSq, MCAS. Then HMC Willis Davidson, branch secretary, of Hq&HqSq, stepped quickly to the water's edge and floated a large wreath of Vanda orchids on the surface of Kaneohe Bay.

Placing of the wreath was followed by the sounding of Echo Taps, played by two branch members, Kenneth McVay and Joseph C. Westaby. As the final notes of Taps faded to silence, a waiting squad from VMF 232 fired rifle volleys in salute.

The ceremony was concluded with a two-minute period of silence, followed by the National Anthem.

In keeping with military custom, a stately salute from the Air Station saluting battery began at high noon and continued at measured intervals of one minute as men of Station Ordnance fired a full 21 rounds in salute to the dead. The final volley, booming in the distance, signalled waiting men of the Station guard who briskly hoisted the colors from half-mast to the peak.

Joining in the ceremonies conducted by all branches of the Armed Forces, and numerous civic groups, at Punchbowl cemetery, seven F2H Banshee jets of VMF 214, MAG-13, whistled over the hilltop as an Army battery below tolled a 21-gun salute.

Led by Maj. R. C. Browning, the Marine pilots formed a cross as they flashed above crowds gathered in honor of the 15,000 veterans who (See RITUALS P-2)

EDITOR'S CORNER

An idea has been kicking around in the minds of the world's best political theorists for hundreds of years: just governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed. The idea is the cornerstone of our Declaration of Independence, although Thomas Jefferson, who was largely responsible for the document, was not the first to express the idea.

Down through the 170 years or so of our existence, we Americans have given life to this idea every time we entered a voting booth or held a town meeting. "Consent" came to mean the will of the majority; the "governed," every citizen.

During these 170 years, we have seen governments based on other notions tumble like the walls of Jericho. Absolute monarchies—government by the "consent" of one man, the king or czar—have all but disappeared. Other totalitarian varieties—government by "consent" of a Fuehrer or Duce—have also been given the gate.

Some totalitarian forms are still around but their lives and the lives of their leaders always are in doubt. This must be so when a government mutes the voice of its people.

We servicemen—no matter how far from Washington or the state capital—will have an opportunity to express our "consent" by voting this year. If our way of life is to rest on a firm, democratic base, we must cast a well-considered vote. (AFPS)

PEACETIME TRAINING IN HAWAII Series IV

In September, 1924, the USS SEATTLE, Flagship of the Commander-in-Chief, United States Fleet, Adm. R. E. Coontz, USN, steered into Honolulu Harbor for a ten-day stay. The object of his visit was to inspect the facilities and to make arrangements for basing the U. S. Fleet during their coming visit and maneuvers at Hawaii in 1925. Adm. Coontz announced that he expected a fleet of 200 ships of all classes, including battleships, submarines, aircraft carriers, tenders, auxiliary vessels, and aircraft (manned by about 42,000 men) to arrive in April, 1925 for maneuvers. Col. F. L. Bradman was commanding officer of the Marine Barracks at this time.

The Marine Corps expeditionary force (approximately 1,300 officers and men), under the command of Maj. Gen. Commandant John A. Lejeune, sailed from Quantico, Va. Mar. 7, 1925 aboard the USS HENDERSON, for the "Grand Army and Navy Joint exercises" to be held with the Fleet in Hawaiian waters.

They arrived at San Diego Mar. 28. April 10, the Marine Corps Expeditionary Force sailed for San Francisco, arriving two days later, where the Marines were split into detachments and embarked aboard the various vessels of the Pacific Fleet.

The United States Fleet left San Francisco April 15 enroute to the Hawaiian Islands to participate in a Grand Joint exercise simulating an attack upon the Hawaiian Islands. This problem, known as Joint Army and Navy Problem No. 3, was designed to test the existing plans and projects for the defense of the Hawaiian Islands, especially the defense of Oahu, and to exercise Army and Navy forces in the conduct of Joint operations. The Marine Expeditionary Force was the Blue Force (United States), while the Black Force (enemy) consisted of Army and Navy Forces on the Island of Oahu. The actual landing operation took place between April 25-28, 1925.

The celebration of the Sesquicentennial of the discovery of the Hawaiian Islands was held at Honolulu in August 1928. Col. J. McE Huey was at that time the commanding officer of the Marine Barracks at Pearl Harbor. Operations for the year consisted of training, radio, gunnery flights and gunnery exercises. The primary mission of Pearl Harbor was to assist in the naval defense of the Hawaiian Islands, to furnish an aircraft repair base when needed, and to serve as a fleet air base. The authorized Marine Barracks, subsistence buildings, laundry and boiler plants had been completed by 1929 when Col. Charles B. Taylor became the new commanding officer.

In July, 1934, the USS ASTORIA (commissioned in April 1934) made her shake-down trip to the Hawaiian Islands. Her Marine Detachment consisted of two officers and 40 enlisted men. When the visit was completed July 17, the ASTORIA headed for Pago Pago. Col. Frank E. Evans was commanding officer of the Marine Barracks at Pearl Harbor at that time.

(Next week, Series V will tell the story of Marines at Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941.)

Marine Helicopters Are Participating In Med Maneuvers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Marine helicopters departed from Norfolk, Va., last week to engage in naval vertical envelopment tactics in the Mediterranean area for the first time in history, Headquarters Marine Corps revealed recently.

Operating from the escort aircraft carrier USS SIBONEY (CVE-112), the 15 "choppers" of Marine Helicopter Transport Squadron 262 will participate in the exercises to be held June 12-14.

The squadron, commanded by Marine Maj. William G. Boss, will return to its home base at New River, N. C., sometime late in June.

ground demonstration. They are expected to leave the Air Station about 2:30 p.m.

1st Marine Brigade headquarters has extended an invitation to all Kaneohe personnel, their dependents, and guests, to attend the demonstration, or the dress rehearsal which will be held next Tuesday. Since the area to accommodate spectators is limited, Brigade headquarters has urged that persons wishing to attend the dress rehearsal, May 5.

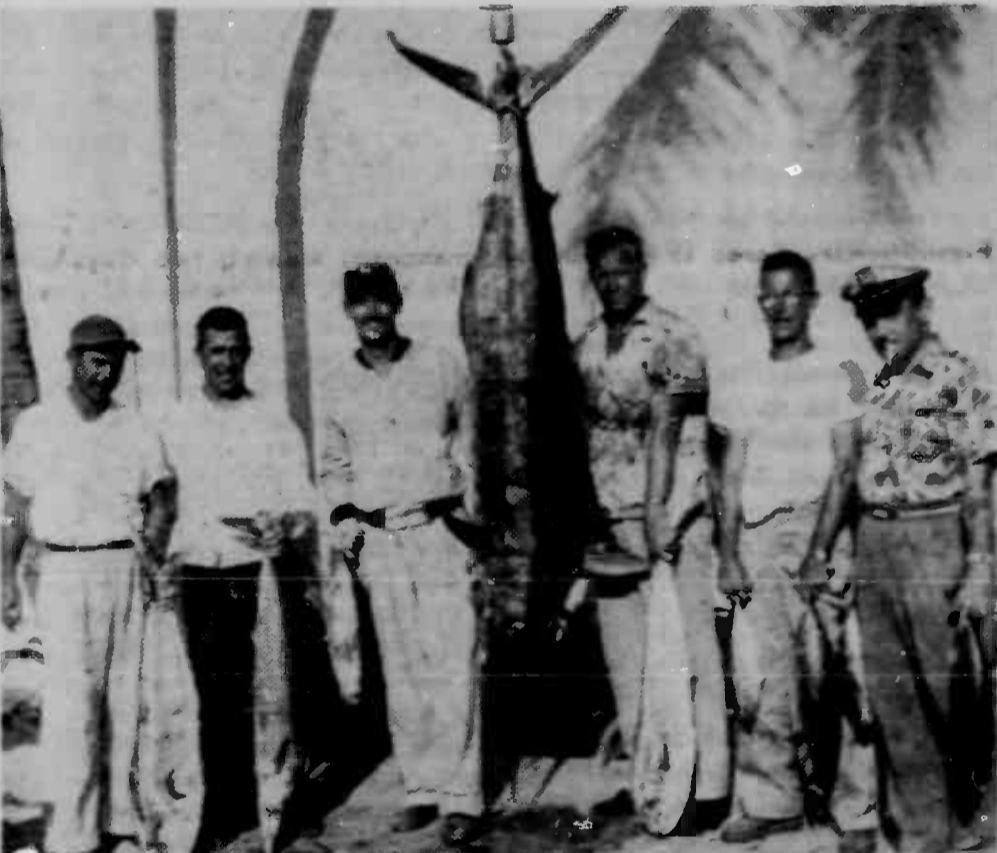

This rehearsal will not vary from the demonstration to be given on Wed., and reservations for attendance will be more readily available.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling the Brigade G-1 office, telephone 72647.

NEW ARRIVALS AT HMR-161—Three bran' spankin' new helicopters have arrived at Marine Helicopter Squadron 161 and are now being assembled. They are of a new design and the first operational HOK-1s were delivered from Kaman Aircraft Corp., Bloomfield, Conn. to the Navy only last month. Technical representative Mr. Bob Bassett (left) instructs two Marines selected as crew chiefs of the new 'copters in the assembly of the craft. Center is TSgt. C. E. Chick and right is TSgt. L. V. Cooper. The new helicopters work on a principle of counter-rotating blades, eliminating the small torque blades used on the familiar HRSs. The tail assembly adds stability to the craft in flight. They can carry four, including pilot or may be adapted to haul two litter patients and a medic. Mr. Bassett says they are the easiest 'copter to fly that has yet been built. He is here to assemble the new machines, check them out and train the crews. Here with Bassett is Mr. Bill Murray, a trained pilot, who will instruct HMR-161 pilots in the operation of the HOK. Bassett expects to have the first of the three assembled today and reports that one will be flown for demonstration June 6.

Cook had been commanding officer of the squadron for seven months.

"WELCOME ABOARD"—Col. William B. Steiner, center, Air Station commanding officer, welcomes Mr. James K. F. Lee, following announcement of Lee's appointment to succeed Mr. John McCarthy, left, as principal of Mokapu Elementary School next term. Mr. McCarthy, who has headed Mokapu the past two years, will become principal of the Pearl Harbor Elementary School.

New Principal Arrives to Assume Mokapu Elementary School Post

Mr. James K. F. Lee, well-known island educator for nearly 25 years, will succeed Mr. John McCarthy as principal of Mokapu Elementary School here next fall.

The announcement and an introduction of Mr. Lee was made at the final meeting of the Mokapu PTA Thursday, May 24, by Mr. McCarthy, who has held the Mokapu post for the past two years. McCarthy will become principal of the Pearl Harbor Elementary School at the opening of the fall term.

Mr. Lee comes to the Air Station from the principality of Kaaawa Elementary School, a post he has held since last December. Prior to that time, he headed the Kilohana Elementary School on Molokai. A graduate of the University of Hawaii, Mr. Lee has taught in Oahu, Maui and Molokai schools since 1932. A veteran of World War II, he holds a major's commission in the Army Reserve.

Mokapu held an "open house" for parents before the PTA business meeting. All classrooms were open to visitors and a number had special attractive displays.

Following the introduction of the new principal, the new Mokapu PTA officers for 1956-57 were introduced. They are: Cdr. William T. Peach III, president; MSgt. Bernard Hurley, vice president; Mrs. Willis N. Davidson, secretary and HMC Ralph R. Carter, treasurer.

Cdr. Peach announced that three committee chairmen had accepted appointments for the coming term, but that volunteers were needed for six other committees. Those appointed were: Mrs. Robin R. Edwards, membership; MSgt. Leon E. Harriman, who continues as recreation chairman and MSgt. Roy G. Carbine, publicity.

On Friday, the outgoing and new principals called on Col. William B. Steiner, Air Station commanding officer. Mr. McCarthy expressed his appreciation for the excellent assistance and cooperation he had received from Public Works, parents, and all others who had contributed improvements at Mokapu during his two year tenure of office.

The post school will hold its graduation exercises next Wednesday, and will close for the summer the following day.

Following a luncheon with his hosts, Adm. Meade was escorted on an informal tour of the Air Station. He departed here at 3 p.m.

As Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Rear Adm. Meade has his headquarters with the Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

Marine Program Backs Recreation

Washington (AFPS) — Ruling out all work and no play, the Marine Corps has launched an extensive recreation program for leathernecks and their families.

The program, set forth in Marine Corps order 1700.5, spans the field of entertainment from hunting and fishing to frolicking social activities.

Authority also has been given to conduct a variety of contests. Recreation funds will be used to buy prizes for top contestants.

Headquarters has urged commanders to encourage participation in the organized off-duty recreation as a means of building physical well-being.

FORMAL GUARD MOUNT, A TRADITION—Passing in review before Capt. A. M. Stewart, Provost Marshal, men of Station Security are shown as they held a formal guard mount here last Tuesday. When we are wrong, no one forgets

The Weatherman's Lament—Probably posted in every weather station in the service, it reflects in a few words the extraordinary task of the weatherman.

The forecaster, or aerologist as he is sometimes called, will tell you that it takes 20 to 30 years to become a top-notch forecaster and then it is time to retire. Here, located in hangar 105, is the Station weather office: nine enlisted men and one officer, all seeking proficiency in forecasting.

Pilots aboard the Station are particularly familiar with the local weather office, for its calculations and deductions are a vital part of their flight plans. To the jet pilot especially is the weather upstairs a key factor.

He has to know where he can pick up tailwinds to help conserve fuel, to know what headwinds to expect to accurately calculate his fuel load and flight range. To aid the pilots, local weathermen are equipped to take accurate measurements of air pressure, temperature, wind direction and velocity, humidity and cloud cover. This information is transmitted to Honolulu where weather central office adds it to reports from all over the Pacific, gets the big picture of what the weather is like and distributes it to MCAS weather and to all other interested weather stations. Marine pilots then have an indication of the weather they can expect on upcoming flights.

Main job of the weather station here is considered to be saving lives by pilot briefing, prior to flight clearance, according to MSgt. W. P. Mayercin NCOIC. MSgt. Mayercin, a veteran forecaster, illustrates the confidence the Marine Corps places in its NCO's. In other branches of the service, officers only are forecasters, while the Corps uses senior staff NCO's.

Mayercin points out that the weatherman's job is one of sequence, gathering the facts in a certain pattern and then judging the most logical weather possibilities on the basis of those facts. "Here", Mayercin says, "we look for changes in the weather, and in ceiling and visibility."

He, along with all weathermen, bemoans the fact that very seldom does he hit the classic situation where weather can be forecast long-range by statistics and have the weather follow through and cooperate. As a rule his office makes two forecasts a day—one in the morning and another for the evening and the next day. These forecasts are for Windward Oahu but are primarily for aviation use.

While weather stations are normally run on a 24 hour basis, Kaneohe's own is short of personnel and cannot operate around the clock. Short as the staff is, two Marines have just picked up aerology MOSS on the job here. Most are school trained with 14 weeks at weather observers school and 20 weeks of forecasters school. Other training is available for the experienced forecaster. In addition to a high GCT requirement, the Marine in training for weather schools must be proficient in mathematics.

At many Marine Corps stations the forecaster gets to fly. In this way the weatherman can see the weather as it actually is, layer by layer. Three-D weather observation assists the weatherman to improve his predictions and see where he might have made mistakes.

Here, where flight time is not available, the weather office uses occasional "debriefings" to get a picture of atmosphere conditions. Many pilots coming in from hops stop off at the office to leave a short description of things upstairs.

Assistant NCOIC, TSgt. E. L. Patrick, illustrating the technical end of weathermaking, says that most of the improvements in predicting have come into being since 1940, when surface clouds were the sole way to "tell the weather." "Now we have upper cloud level, charts and widespread statistic reports to aid us," Patrick says. Years ago it was customary to fly over or around a thunderhead, now sometimes it is easiest on the aircraft to fly through it with little or no discomfort noticed.

Patrick was also able to explain what the weatherman is referring to when he says highs and lows. They are the hills and valleys of the gaseous atmosphere. A high pressure area is generally considered to be good while its neighboring lows are usually a bad sign. Your storm damage is likely to come from a low.

Among the equipment used by the local weather station are a continuously operating wind speed and direction recorder, a continuous air pressure recorder and one which must be read by a forecaster on duty, and three teletype circuits linking this station with the other side of the island. On hangar 105's roof is a small telescope called a theodolite and it is through this scope that the 10:30 balloon is watched every morning. The balloon's rate of ascent and its direction give our local weather wizards a picture of winds at every altitude where the grey balloon is visible.

Larger stations may use radio equipment balloons which transmit all this information back to earth as it rises through the atmosphere.

Interestingly enough, there are 27 kinds of clouds, all of which must be recognized by the experienced observer.

Officer-in-charge of weather operations is Capt. C. J. Laskowski. Working under Mayercin and Patrick are: Sgt. C. H. West; Cpls. D. M. Kucharski, W. Laimbeer, L. G. Simmons, D. Morales, J. A. Kelly and PFC H. L. Miller.

READY TO CAST OFF THE WEATHER BALLOON.

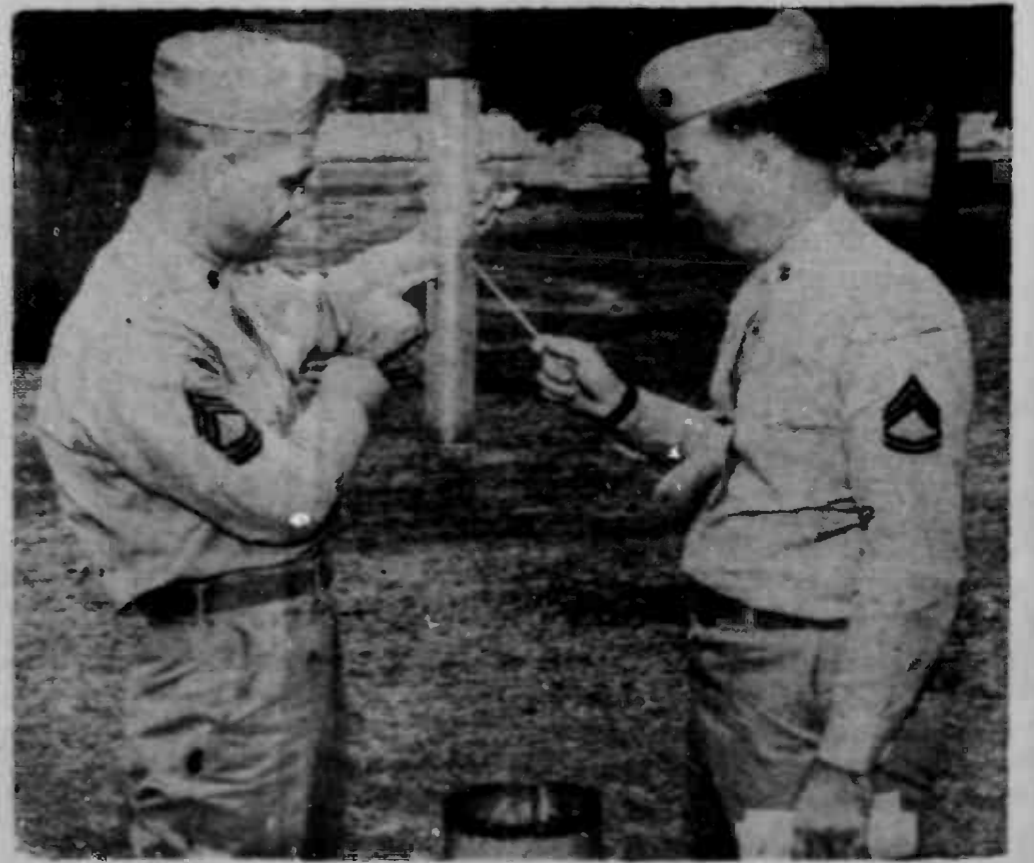

"AND AWAY WE GO . . . WHITHER THE WEATHER BALLOON?"

THIS IS HOW IT IS. AT 40,000

—Lt. James R. Milier, left, of Marine Fighter Squadron 232 reports in for a debriefing chat with TSgt. E. L. Patrick following a morning flight. Aerology gathers some of its weather information from returning flights.

KANEHOE BAY BOY SCOUTS

TROOP #225

By LARRY MINKEL

Newspapers and coat hangers are presently high priority items for Troop #225 as their big drive swings into the second week.

If you haven't already been contacted, stack 'em up and scouts will be by to pick 'em up.

For the duration of the drive, scouts will canvass the K-Bay area each Wednesday evening before scout meeting.

Profit from the sale of this material will increase the troop fund and enable them to buy new equipment.

A troop committee election of officers was held last Wednesday with the following results: Maj. E. H. Winchester, acting chairman; Maj. David Riley, secretary; Maj. J. J. Shute, treasurer; Chief Robert D. Gaines, transportation; Capt. J. D. Cox, institutional representative; TSgt. William B. Kuhl, assistant treasurer.

Personnel interested in scouting are advised to contact Sgt. L. H. Minkel. Phone - 72233, 72897, 72943 extension 101 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Breakin' the News

By PFC BOB GALLAGHER

There were two lines of cars, one coming and one going, moving through the gates Wednesday. In the cars were both military and civilian, mourner and sightseer, commentator and curious, local and transient. They came in new Cadillacs and old Chryslers. They were as varied as the residents of Punchbowl.

I didn't get there in time for the speeches, the firing squad and the cover. I'm glad I didn't. The men in Punchbowl were not shouting patriotic bromides when they fell, their rifles were not loaded with bullets and the airplanes they saw were not always friendly.

They died simply; some in the attack, some in defense, others while in mess. They died all over the world for many different reasons. Some returned home to die.

I asked an Army sergeant from Graves Registration what happened at all the crosses.

"Cost too much money," he replied. "The wooden ones we used have cost too much to keep painted and replaced when they rotted. Someone suggested stone crosses but nobody wants to pay."

I would have talked to him longer but he started giving me facts and figures. Somehow statistics seem out of place in Punchbowl.

A little girl tugged at her mother's hand as they walked between the rows. "Mommy, there are millions." Other little children scampered among the graves righting the cans of flowers overturned by the wind.

Three generations of women shuffled back and forth from the car with flowers for a stone marked: Shimizu. Before it, an elderly Japanese held his Buddhist prayer beads about his hands. A PFC with the 442 Infantry. He was 23 years old.

Next to them was a stone all but obscured with flowers. "An only son," explained a Japanese woman standing beside me. "He was killed in Italy. His father flies over every year from Kohala, Hawaii.

"I lived in Kohala before I was married." She shifted her daughter to her other arm. "My father was interned for awhile. He sent three sons to the war but they all came back. My aunt was killed at Hiroshima. It's funny how war twists things up.

"You study anthropology and you find that it's only time and distance that have drawn us apart." I wondered how many men in Punchbowl had studied anthropology.

Flanked on three sides by unknown graves and on the fourth by a road is a stone marked Ernest Taylor Pyle, Indiana. It looks the same as all the rest. Ernie would have liked that.

All afternoon people kept coming up and photographing his marker. Some argued about aperture openings. Some had their wives pose before it. Ernie wouldn't have liked that.

One man took off his hat. Who was Ernie Pyle to you, I asked. "Ernie was a war correspondent. He liked to live with the enlisted men."

You ever know him?
"I knew him. I never met him or saw him, but I knew him."

I walked over to where the Korean dead had been buried. A woman stood off to one side while her husband photographed the stone. "No, this isn't mine. But I know his wife and she hasn't even bothered to come up here with flowers. It's disgraceful. I'm going to phone her about it."

I walked down the rows. Clough, Billings, Kaapana, Rivera, McCoy, Jacobson, Nakamura, Rutkowski. There was an Army nurse from Wisconsin. There were dependents of servicemen, the silent heroes who sat home and waited and worried and wrote letters and prayed and tried to help out.

There was a Marine PFC from Texas who had been killed on Okinawa.

I stopped by a mass grave of Navy, Marines and civilians. A man was trying to keep his son off the stone. I asked him about the crosses.

"They took them down so they could cut the grass easier. When you have crosses, you have to trim around each one. With the flat markers, you can cut right over the top of them."

On the promontory, I talked with an Army private who was directing traffic. "This place has been a madhouse all day. People just can't seem to read the No Parking signs."

From the observation point, Punchbowl, with its neat rows of graves and symmetrical streets, looks very orderly. A lot more so than the world these men died to protect.

"Never miss an opportunity for a publicity plug for the service!"

When SSgt. Frank R. (Candy) Candelario, radio - TV information man of the local Informational Services Section, makes that statement, he means it.

And he carries it to extreme length, sometimes — even in his personal life.

Take, for instance, the arrival of the sarge's first son last week. Candy has waited a long time for the boy. Three daughters long, as a matter of fact, ranging from seven to two years.

According to Candelario, however, he "called" his heir's arrival for — yep, Armed Forces Day.

"Couldn't quite make it for November 10," Candy observes, "so took the next best bet."

With wife Roberta's help, the boy arrived 6:58 a.m. May 19 at Tripler.

Holder of the Legion of Merit and veteran of four WW II campaigns and pre-war expeditionary service in Haiti and Nicaragua, the general was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1922 after graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy. Two types of listings will be established in the center. One contains the names, units, and driving routes of personnel traveling in their privately-owned automobiles via the Pali daily, and who desire to take passengers.

The second list will contain names and units of personnel traveling the Pali who like to ride with other car owners.

The Marine Corps Institute is happily enjoying a completion boom as indicated by MCI Training News May '56.

A surging interest in the MCI by Marines everywhere is indicated by course completion totals for the first quarter of 1956 as compared with first quarters of previous years. In 1953 the total was 386, and in 1956 the total is 1,441. Thus first quarter 1956 shows almost a 300% increase over first quarter 1953.

Since new enrollments have remained about the same over the four-year period, the percentage of completions when compared to new enrollments shows a strong rise.

MCI believes this over-all increase in completions stems from the Institute's curriculum which emphasizes training and the constant effort being made to offer Marines courses that are practical and easy to digest.

Moreover, unit commanders from Camp Lejeune to Okinawa are taking advantage of the opportunity to train their personnel with minimum effort. These unit commanders and unit training officers are hurrying to incorporate MCI MOS courses in their training plans, and the Marines themselves admit that new, shorter, and more compact courses are as sound as they are interesting and useful.

Briefly, here is a review of the related MCI courses applicable to occupational fields by MOS.

If you didn't make the fights the other night, you were missing out on some real entertainment.

We're speaking of the AlMar Hawaiian Area boxing tourney. The first half was conducted Monday night, the finals are tonight.

Some good, heavy boxing (and slugging, not to mention fancy footwork) transpired.

Fighting was clean, crowd was not disappointed from the opening match (there were 16 of 'em) to the last.

Everybody enjoyed himself. Tonight should be better.

Without a doubt, everybody who attended Monday will be there tonight.

See you there . . . at the outdoor theater.

Personal Efforts

Sunday is one day we're not overlooking, as far as entertainment goes.

The boys down at the Station boathouse have planned a water skiing exhibition, loaded with tricks and laughs, plus a sailboat race, plus a few other things you'll find out about Sunday.

The place: water ski ramp behind hanger 102.

The time: 1:30 to about 4 p.m.

Nobody told, or even asked, the boat house boys to do this.

It's something they thought up, practiced on, perfected and then asked for permission to do.

A couple of dozen guys are going to participate. All on their own time; to give you a real good show.

Inside Straight

FILCHED MATERIAL DEPT. — Vanderbilt will be strengthened at fullback next season with the return of Jim Ray from the Corps. He played at both Parris Island and Camp Lejeune.

Betty Jane Petras, daughter of Lt. Col. Ted Petras, has been named "Sheriff of El Toro" for the rodeo which will take place in Santa Ana June 15-17. Sheriff Petras was recently nominated as Miss Orange County for the future Miss California competition.

A Guy Named Herrington

SSgt. Bob Herrington, who has set the .45-caliber pistol ranges afire around the island, owns about every local .45 record going.

And it's a fact, Herrington first fired the pistol eight months ago.

Since then, he's won the 14th Naval District championship, Regional tourney and has collected 26 medals to show for his effort.

How did he become interested in the .45? He was firing the M-1 for requalification.

Musta' been out of the black and grabbed a pistol.

WELCOME ABOARD, SIR, AND GOOD GOLFING — Maj. Gen. James P. Riseley, deputy commander, FMFPac, (left) is welcomed to the K-Bay golf course by Col. William B. Steiner, Station CO, on "Riseley Day", which was held last Wednesday. "Riseley Day" consisted of officers and men of FMFPac and officers and men of K-Bay competing in afternoon golf matches honoring the departure of Gen. Riseley.

Boxing Finals Here Tonight

(The All-Marine Hawaiian Area Novice and Open tournament will be concluded tonight in the finals to select outstanding boxers to represent the Hawaii Marines in Inter-Service matches, Pacific Area tourney, and All-Marine finals. Starting time tonight is 8 p.m. at the outdoor theater located behind the EM swimming pool.)

Two knockouts and three TKO's highlighted the first half of the All-Marine Hawaiian Area Novice and Open boxing tournament held Monday night in the outdoor theater arena.

Almost a thousand fans were on hand to see 16 bouts in seven classes of novice and open fighting from all Marine Corps units aboard the Air Station and Camp Smith.

In what was termed one of the best two bouts of the evening, PFC Willie Cooper, of 1st Bn., won a unanimous decision over PFC John Newman, of 2nd Bn., in the lightwelterweight novice class.

The first knockdown of the night was scored by Newman as he spilled Cooper, only to be dumped a few seconds later.

Newman drew blood in the second and the remainder of the match was toe-to-toe slugging with Cooper emerging victor.

Fans were also on their feet when SSGT. Lionel DeLeon, of VMF-214, took a unanimous decision over Cpl. William White, of 3rd Bn., in the middleweight open division.

DeLeon, possessor of a solid left jab, put two solid southpaw pegs into White in the first, but couldn't put him down.

In the second round White came from his corner into a solid right which sent him spinning into the ropes, followed by a potent right.

White countered in the third, trading left jabs which proved effective against DeLeon, but not enough to offset the unanimous decision DeLeon took.

Marines Shut Out Hickam 3-0 after Falling to Asahis

The Hawaii Marine baseball team pulled a shut-out 3-0 victory over the Hickam Flyers and lost a heart-breaking 2-1 verdict to the Asahis last week.

The Asahis downed the Leathernecks 2-1 in 10 innings at Honolulu Stadium last Thursday in a mound duel between Bob Dennison of the Marines, making his second start of the season, and Ralph Taketa, who had defeated the Leathernecks early in the season.

Each pitcher allowed but three hits.

The Marines scored in the first inning on a hit and three walks, but the Asahis came back in the fourth to tie it up with Larry Kamishima's seventh homer of the year.

Both pitchers bore down the rest of the way until the bottom of the 11th when leftfielder Ben Addiego allowed a fly to pop out of his glove for a two-base error.

Taketa bunted down the third base line and Art Barba threw it over the head of first sacker Garry Earnest for the second error of the inning, allowing Al Maskie to score with the winning run.

Line scores:

The Leatherneck nine bounced back Sunday when manager Ken McCreight sent righthander Bill McGarvey to the mound against the Hickam Flyers.

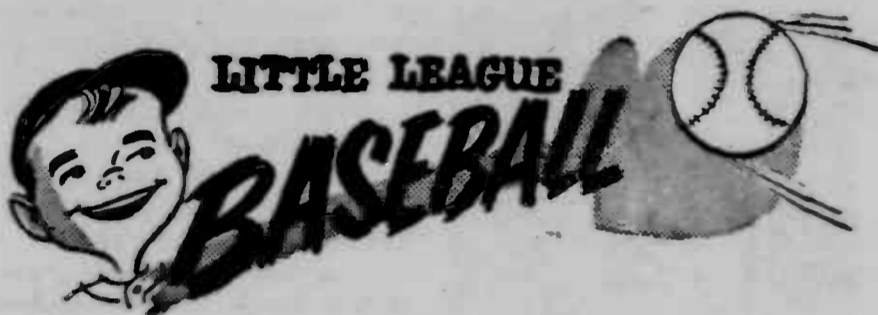

McGarvey proved to be the right choice, besting Lefty Vane Sutton, 3-0.

HOOPS VS LAWSON IN FINALS

Well here it is,—the big match of the year to determine the 1956 Champion between Jim Hoops and Walter Lawson. Both boys bowled over all opposition and now stand alone as most of the golfing "railbirds" predicted, and face each other in the 36-hole finals Sunday. Tee-off time has been set at 9 a.m. for the morning round and 1 p.m. for the final 18.

Both finalists had narrow squeaks in the semi-finals with Hoops barely beating Pete Kramer on the final carpet after trailing all the way. The less experienced Kramer three-putted the final three holes to tie one and lose the other two and the match one-down.

Lawson, on the other hand, was one-down at the very outset to the "solid-swinging" Dr. Thomas, squaring the match on the fifth hole with a birdie-four. Lawson won the sixth and seventh to go two-up and finished the first nine with that margin. Both played fine golf and Thomas's birdie-three on the 16th whittled the lead to one-up. Dormied as they headed for the final green, Dr. Thomas "trapped his tee shot," while Lawson hit the green comfortably, registering a three to his opponent's bogey-four and winning the match 2-up.

Speculation is running high as to the eventual outcome of this big tussle, and opinions are divided. Just like horse racing—good!

MAG-13 Tourney

Planned entirely by members of the boathouse, the entertainment will begin at 1:30 and will last until approximately 4 p.m.

The afternoon program will include a sailboat race, water skiing exhibitions, tricks, distance jumps, clown acts and surprise entertainment.

Parking will be available across from the Station boathouse. Almost two dozen water skiers, all amateurs who have learned at the boat house, will participate in the afternoon fun.

All K-Bay personnel and their dependents are cordially invited.

Aku-Marines

By JACK FISHER

Now that the rough winter waters are calming down, the Aku-Marines are making plans for a spear-fishing contest to be held sometime in the near future.

Last year's contest provided some real sport for club members and independent divers alike, but this year's event promises to be even more enjoyable.

Details will be announced when firm, but soon, so all divers are advised to sharpen their spears and trigger fingers.

LOBSTER ALA LOBSTER

Judging from the fine results of last weekend, competition should be pretty keen. Russ Pfaff nailed two beautiful parrot fish weighing five and eight pounds each, while Mathide Gomez, Bob and Jim Dungan joined up to bring in a delectable catch of lobster.

One in particular, caught by Gomez, weighed a conservative seven pounds, which is a lot of good eating no matter how you cook it.

LOBSTER ALA NOTHING

Larry Windley and Dave Cooke didn't fare too well with lobsters—all they caught were egg-bearing females which had to be turned loose. However, no such difficulty was encountered with their fine catch of fish, two of which were surgeon fish totaling 27 pounds.

REAL FISH STORY

Russ Pfaff shot the eight-pound parrot fish mentioned above with a passion for doing the job up right.

Russ's spear went right through the tail of the fish then pierced the head in such a manner as to keep the fish curved in a semi-circle.

Now if Russ can figure out how he got the fish to assume such an obliging position in the first place, his brilliant future as a skindiver should be assured.

Note: All lobsters are now out of season. Be a sportsman, and save the game for next season.

Field Training For Air Station Women Marines

Kaneohe's male personnel were left behind last Friday when Women Marines Detachment 3 went into the field.

The local WM's, under command of Capt. Patricia Maas, locked up their quarters and boarded the crash boat for a training bivouac on Coconut Island to acquaint them with the methods of subsistence in the field for Fleet Marine Force units.

Upon debarking on the island at 5:30 p.m., the detachment hiked to the camping area which was located along the beach.

Unfamiliar to "roughing it", the women wasted no time in getting situated for out-door living. Their sleeping bags and field equipment covered the beach within 3 minutes after arriving.

Training began immediately with swimming and a tour of the island. Next on the schedule was chow, which of course was "C" rations and caused many comments, but no grave complaints.

Back to training and class until 9 p.m., then the rest of the evening was free and the girls again took to the swimming pool.

Reveille went at 6 a.m. Saturday morning - but most of the detachment was very much awake due to the rain at 5 a.m. Back to "C" rations.

Classes were held all morning from 7 a.m. until 10:30 at which time the area was policed and at 11:30 a.m. the bivouac was secured and the WM's boarded the boat for K-Bay.

American Falls, Idaho (AFPS)—Tom Dille Jr. just can't get Kwajalein Island off his chest. When his father was stumped for the spelling of the Pacific island recently, Tom peeled off his shirt and revealed this bold tattoo: "Kwajalein." Tom had been there with the Air Force.
