Cherry Point Site For Top Enlisted Annual Symposium

Among the items on the agenda to be discussed at the fourth annual Marine Corps staff noncommissioned officers symposium are the new warrant officer and limited duty officer program and the military occupational specialties.

A total of 33 senior NCOs from 18 commands throughout the Corps will attend the conference at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C. The symposium will be held Aug. 9 through Aug. 12.

This marks the first time the symposium will be held at Cherry Point. The three earlier symposiums were held at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., with the initial meeting being called to gather military career information for the Cordier Committee.

Recommendations made at the Corps NCO symposiums have often been used by Headquarters to form new enlisted personnel policies.

In addition to the above-mentioned items, Headquarters personnel experts want the NCOs to discuss and make recommendations on such things as leave policies, drill instructor training, physical fitness program, training, policies, and the promotion of senior NCOs.

The 1959 meeting will be conducted by Sgt. Maj. Asa Huskey, the enlisted personnel expert assigned to G-1 at Headquarters.

Maj. Gen. Donald M. Weller, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1 is scheduled to address the opening session of the symposium.

Enlisted Reserve Policies Changed By Headquarters

According to a story appearing in Navy Times, two important policies concerning enlisted reservists have been issued by Marine Corps Headquarters:

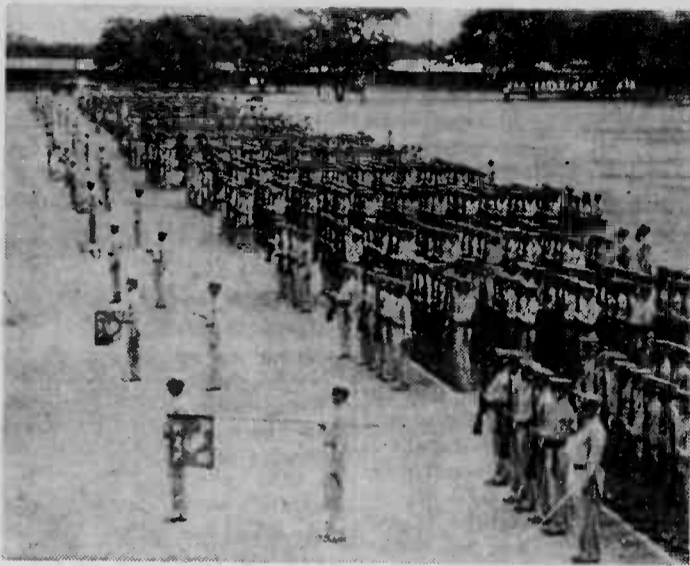

- No Marine reservist may volunteer for extended active duty.
- Reservists, failing to keep up their inactive training commitments, will be busted in rank and involuntarily ordered to active duty training as privates.

The bust-in-rank order is aimed at a "small group" of Reserve enlisted Marines who fail to attend their weekly drill periods regularly. Those who fail to take the training they voluntarily agreed to will be involuntarily ordered to active duty.

And all thus ordered to involuntary training will be reduced to the grade of private.

The new ruling is based upon the fact that the Commandant has the power to reduce any noncommissioned officer to private for incompetence.

Extended active duty assignments for enlisted reservists have been curtailed because the Corps is now able to fill its requirements with regulars. This is due both to the general reduction in strength, as well as to more six-year enlistments and increased re-enlistment rates.

FOURTH MARINES PARADE — Massed Infantrymen and officers of the 4th Marine Regiment, will salute their new commander, Col. John W. Antonelli, in a scene similar to this today at 3 p.m. at Platt Field. This view was taken during the farewell parade for Col. John I. Masters, former commander of the "Old China Regiment."

REGIMENTAL PARADE, REVIEW HONORS COL. J. W. ANTONELLI

Col. John W. Antonelli, winner of the Navy Cross for combat action at Iwo Jima, will be formally honored as the new commanding officer of the 4th Marine Regiment during parade and review ceremony at Platt Field at 3 p.m. today.

Over 3,000 infantrymen and officers will salute their new commander, and pass in review during the traditional honors.

Col. Antonelli

Commanding officer of troops for the event will be Lt. Col. E. L. Medford Jr., Regimental executive officer. Lt. Col. B. J. Andruska will lead the 1st Bn., Lt. Col. R. H. Thompson the 2nd Bn., and Maj. D. H. Brooks the separate companies of the Regiment for the ceremony.

Martial music will be furnished by the 1st Marine Brigade Band and Drum and Bugle Corps under the direction of ActMSgt. W. A. Tosh.

Col. Antonelli was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1940 and the Basic School, Marine Barracks, Philadelphia, in 1941. He then reported for duty with the 1st Bn., 5th Marines, which was later designated as the 1st Raider Bn. and served as a company commander during the Tulagi, Guadalcanal and Savo Island campaigns.

Later in 1943, he commanded the Raider Training Bn. until he assumed command of the 2nd Bn., 27th Marines 5th Marine Division, which he led during the Iwo Jima campaign.

Assignments after World War II took Col. Antonelli to Marine Barracks, Boston, Mass., the U.S. Naval Academy as a midshipman battalion commander, and, in 1950, to the staff of Commander, Cruisers, Atlantic. He was graduated from the Senior Course of the Amphibious Warfare School in 1953.

From 1953 to 1955, Col. Antonelli served as S-3 and executive officer of the Basic School at Quantico and was then assigned as executive officer of the 9th Marines, 3rd Marine Division on Okinawa. Upon return to the United States, he was assigned to Headquarters Marine Corps where he served until his current assignment.

In addition to the Navy Cross, his awards include the Purple Heart, Letter of Commendation, two Presidential Unit Citations, American Defense Medal, Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal with three stars, the Navy Occupation Service Medal and the National Defense Service Medal.

It will mark his first official inspection of a major Marine Corps facility since assuming the post.

In addition to Gen. Ennis, the inspecting party is composed of Col. James H. Christenson, Lt. Col. D. M. Persinger, Capt. C. R. Livingston, Capt. William J. Benyo and Capt. J. Ward.

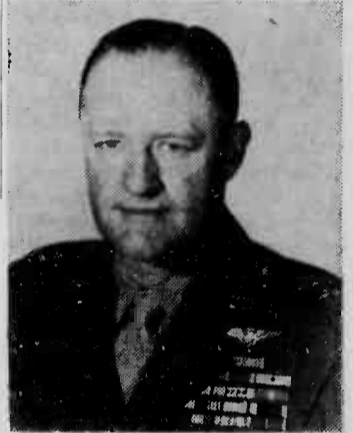

Specialists inspectors are: Lt. Col. Hazel E. Benn (Special Services), Maj. A. S. Dooley (Troop), Maj. H. A. Stakstrom (Troop), Maj. C. L. Goode (Maintenance and Operation of facilities); Maj. L. J. A native of Norwalk, Conn., Gen.

Ennis graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1928 and received his naval aviator wings at Pensacola, Fla., in 1930.

Among his decorations, Gen. Ennis includes the Legion of Merit with Combat "V" and Oak Leaf Cluster. His first Legion of Merit was earned while serving as MAJ-14 executive officer and second-in-command of the Guadalcanal-based Bomber Command which included Army, Navy, Marine and Royal New Zealand Air Force planes.

Windward Fair Begins Tonight At Castle High

K-Bay Marines and their families have been invited to attend the three-day Windward Fair which opens on the Castle high school grounds in Kaneohe at 5:45 p.m. today. Admission is free.

Today the 1st Marine Brigade Band and Drum and Bugle Corps will participate in the Fair which is being sponsored by the Hawaii Young Farmers' Association. At 4 p.m. the Drum and Bugle Corps will put on a marching demonstration while the Band, under the direction of ActMSgt. William Tosh, will give a concert at 6 p.m.

This year's event, the 13th annual Fair, provides many Windward organizations and hundreds of individuals an opportunity to display their commercial or hobby products in competition for awards.

According to Tosh Sugita, general chairman, the Windward Fair is the only fair in Hawaii having complete coverage of agriculture and allied industries.

Cash prizes, trophies and awards total more than $2000. All proceeds from the fair go toward carrying out a progressive Young Farmer program and to assist community programs such as 4-H and FFA.

In addition to band concerts and displays, the fair will feature beef steer judging, banana and watermelon eating contests, produce auctions and hula shows. Drawings for valuable prizes will be held each hour on the hour.

Opening time for the fair on Saturday and Sunday will be 12 noon. The fair will run until midnight on each of the three days.

SOME THOUGHTS

"As a man thinks, so he is!" (I cannot recall if that is a quotable quote.) The validity of these words is certainly demonstrated in daily situations very familiar to us. To a certain point, within limited and well-defined goals, men can be trained to act and re-act in generally predictable ways, without giving much consideration to their thinking. Once the basic education is completed, so long as the over-all situation remains controlled, the actions and decisions of individuals can also be controlled in a pattern closely aligned with the pre-determined goals.

If, in the process in initial training, the individual has caught some meaningfulness, or acquired a purposive vision, adopting beliefs and ideas complimentary to the established goal, there is a well-trained individual. It is this man who will be able to operate independently and in crucial situations, in which he alone must make determinative decisions.

Whenever the thoughts of men have been regarded as inconsequential or of lesser importance, or when ever men themselves have neglected thinking, when they are separated from the controlled situation, they are certainly less well-equipped to act or even re-act. Hopelessness, fear, uncertainty becomes quite natural symptoms.

In formal training and in self-training a man's thoughts are always his own. BUT THEY ARE VASTLY IMPORTANT. (Much more so than reflected in the selection of a certain brand of cigarettes.) The man who is not able to stand up in any situation, easy or difficult, and begin a meaningful sentence with these words, "I believe.", is a man, who has either been short-changed by his family and community, or he is a man who has short-changed himself, or both.

Behind every nation, behind every form of government, behind each social movement, beneficial or destructive, behind every man and his actions — is thought. "As a man thinks, so he is!" And since any nation is always and primarily a collection of individuals — "As men think, so is the nation!"

The voice behind a telephone call reflects the personality and efficiency of an organization or home. Five marines and one mascot were asked, "What is your pet peeve when making or receiving a phone call?"

ACTCPL. MERRILL ROSE of MA-

BS-13 — Simple . . . the man who sounds like he's screaming at the top of his voice. The person making the call feels like his head was in the exhaust end of an F8U blasting off for Mars. What one gets from that type of caller isn't a headache. It's worse than that.

CPL. (E-4) RONALD L. ROBIN-

SON, GCA controller — It really burns me up when people dial a wrong number, then hang up without a sound. A little phone courtesy would make others feel better.

ACMSGT. J. M. MORAN, MAT-

CU-62 personnel chief — No peeves. I'm happy. However, I'd be happier if more people in the world had names. It's nice to know who you are talking to.

ACTCPL. RICHARD C. CALCA-

TERRA of MAT-CU-62, GCA controller—When people call in, it seems they never give their name or rank. You never know who you are talking with. It's like talking with a lost aircraft (one with radio trouble). He never answers.

ACTSSGT. THANE S. DABELICH,

GCA technician — That mystery caller is the one that gets me. You answer the phone and the party will give no identification. You ask who is calling and they hang up without telling you.

SOCKS, MATCU-62 mascot—All

I do is answer phones around this place. Never receive any calls. I wish some of my canine friends would dial me occasionally.

MOVIE MANNERS OF MANY COULD STAND IMPROVEMENT

Movie menaces aren't all crackpot scientists who like to saw blondes in half. Nor are they always cold-eyed gamblers who wear black felt hats and sport little mustaches. The man sitting next to you in the dark at your base theater may be a movie menace. And the menace may even be you.

Do you hee-haw like a jackass at comedy scenes? Do you give out with catcalls and wolf whistles when Marilyn or Brigitte go into action? Do you make audible comments on their generous endowments? Or do you go beyond that and mouth small-boy smut?

Do you chomp popcorn and litter the aisles and seats with rubbish? Do you carry on a running conversation with your buddies? Do you go to the show straight from the club, exuding a heady cloud of alcohol?

No, the menace isn't all on celluloid. The old saying that one apple can spoil a barrelful applies to movie-going—one nuisance in the audience can spoil the show for everyone around him. And the pity of it is, when the lights are up he'll probably behave like anyone else. It's the cloak of darkness that encourages him to act like a lout in Cinemascope, Vista-Vision and Stereophonic Sound. (AFPS)

SOVIET EXHIBIT IN N.Y.

---U.S. SHOW IN MOSCOW

The sight of the Soviet hammer and sickle decorating the lofty white wall of the New York Coliseum should give no sensible American the jitters. Beside it is the Stars and Stripes—and it is important to remember that the Stars and Stripes were prominently on view when Vice President Nixon recently opened the American National Exhibition in Moscow.

This Soviet Exhibition of Science, Technology and Culture is giving the U.S. its first big-scale look at the life of Communist Russia since the World's Fair of 20 years ago. Thousands of Americans will see the more than 10,000 displays and judge for themselves how the Soviet good life compares with their own.

For the U.S., the interchange of exhibits is eminently practical. It affords us an unprecedented chance to put ourselves on view before the Russian people without distortions of propaganda. We welcome the Soviet exhibition in New York because our own exhibition in Moscow will tell the American story—to hundreds and thousands, even millions of eyes and ears eager to see and hear it. Superstition had little effect on the volume of sales at the Marine Exchange Garden Shop last week . . . During the painting of the building exterior, the old saying that it is bad luck to walk under a ladder failed to keep customers out of the sales room even though it was necessary to walk under a maze of ladders.

Our Station military police received another pat on the back this week from the wife of Maj. R. O. Carlock — In a note addressed to Maj. E. R. Reid, Station Provost Marshall, Mrs. Carlock thanked Maj. Reid for the courtesies extended her by ActCpl. J. C. Gidrey. Mrs. Carlock encountered a flat tire while driving on the station. Gidrey happened by, stopped, and volunteered to fix the tire. According to Mrs. Carlock, "It was a hot afternoon and an unpleasant job, but I'd like you to know how courteous and helpful the MP was."

Voted this week's two luckiest Marines are ActMSgt. Charles E. Caswell, and ActSgt. Ira Thomas, both of Messhall 1— These two Marines are always looking for ways of bettering themselves. It just happens that they are both interested in cake decorating, so they enrolled in a cake decorating class at the YWCA. They know this will help them in their particular MOS — The class is composed of 12 women, and our two Marines — To make matters even better, they even have YWCA cards which entitle them to enjoy the facilities of the club — How lucky can you get?

If you have noticed a new type jet zooming around over the station, don't become alarmed, they are not enemy planes, they are F9FA8T's which are attached to HAMS-13. At present, HAMS has received two of the new jets and are expecting a third shortly — The new jets are two-seaters, and are scheduled to replace the present TV2s. They are being used for pilot instrument training.

Well, it's that time of the year again, and if you have noticed the stock pages in the newspapers, you will see where stocks on shoe and brass polish, and ribbons and decorations have taken a big jump — It's that last minute rush in preparation for the IG Inspection — Every year it's the same old routine, rush to do things that we should have done throughout the year — There's another inspection in 1960, stay prepared 365 days out of the year, and avoid that last minute rush.

Oahu Fire Fighting Agreement Links Military and Civilians

Hawaii isn't just the first state to be composed of a group of islands but is the first place in the world where Army, Navy, Air Force and civil authorities agree to fight fires together and save taxpayers $600,000 a year.

Tri-service commanders and the mayor of the City and County of Honolulu signed the unique mutual aid fire-fighting pact earlier this month. K-Bay's Fire Department, under

Principal Wins T'master Award

Art Nash, giving his last speech before departing for his new home on the Big Island, won the two top awards, "Best Speaker" and "Most Improved Speaker", at the Monday meeting of the Staff NCO Toastmasters Club.

He served during the 1958-1959 term as vice-principal of K-Bay's Mokapu Elementary School. Nash will assume duties on Hawaii as principal of Kurtistown Elementary School in September.

The award for "Best Evaluator" was shared by Bill Schuster and John McConnell.

Speakers for next Monday's meeting are Ray Laurie, Dan Dougherty and Schuster. Toastmaster of the evening will be Herb Sanchez.

An election will be held at the dinner-meeting to elect a sergeant-at-arms. Nominees for this office are Dick Wasson and Schuster.

Meetings of the public speaking group are held in the A'oha Room of the Staff NCO Club each Monday at 7 p.m. Membership in the Toastmasters is open to all Staff NCOs and civil service workers. Guests are cordially invited to attend the meetings.

K-Bay Teen Club

Refreshments will be furnished along with the music. All teenager dependents are cordially invited to attend.

the control of the 14th Naval District, is part of the pact. The Kahana Valley fire on July 22 marked the local fire-fighters first official participation in the new program. Approximately 100 Marines helped fight the blaze.

Honolulu Fire Chief William K. Blaisdell and Larry Duhrkoop, Armed Forces Fire Protection Coordinator, said the program will save the city and federal governments $600,000 in the first year. This is because joint operations will make it unnecessary to build the number of new fire stations that would be required otherwise, they explained.

Signers of the new pact were Honolulu Mayor Neal S. Blaisdell (brother of the fire chief); RADM. E. A. Solomons, 14th Naval District Commandant; Maj. Gen. J. E. Thelmer, 25th Inf. Div. commander and Brig. Gen. P. T. Preuss, Pacific Air Force Base commander.

The agreement provides:

- Sending men and equipment to each other's alarms when requested.
- Maintenance of a radio and telephone fire-alarm network.
- Establishment of a tri-service and city training board to standardize training of civilian and military fire-fighters. City firemen will be given free training at military fire-fighting schools.

The City of Honolulu will provide fire-alarm service at military installations where there is no fire-fighting equipment. In turn, the military will do the same where its equipment is nearest the scene of the fire in civilian areas.

The key provision in the new pact allows the fire-fighting unit from any military base or any city fire station to assist in any incident in either an active or stand-by status.

The Chief of Naval Operations recently extended a hearty "Well Done" to fire-fighters of the 14th Naval District, including the K-Bay unit, as a result of awards made in Washington, D.C., by the National Fire Protection Association.

The awards were given in recognition of outstanding fire prevention projects and accomplishments in 1958.

VETERAN OF 4 SERVICES FAVORS MARINE CORPS

"I'll take the Marine Corps all the way." This is the opinion of ActGySgt. Robert G. Piercy who has served in every branch of the armed forces except the Air Force. He is now serving with Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-13 here.

Piercy's career began in 1931 at the age of 14 when he enlisted in the Florida National Guard for three years. Eight years later he again got the urge for a uniform and joined the Coast Guard. He was given a medical discharge in March 1940 because of a back injury.

Eleven months later Uncle Sam sent him greetings with an invitation to join the Army of the United States.

A short tour of duty in Bermuda, service in the Rhineland-Ardenne and throughout Central Europe where he fought in several campaigns completed his Army career and in August, 1945, he returned to the United States for discharge.

Feeling that he still hadn't received his full share of military service, he enlisted in the Naval Reserve on May 4, 1947. However, four hours after taking the Navy oath he was persuaded by an enthusiastic Marine recruiter that he should wear the globe and anchor of the United States Marine Corps Reserve. He immediately applied for discharge from the Naval Reserve, which he was granted four days later. Piercy joined the Leathernecks on May 10, 1947, and has been on active duty with the Corps since that day. He integrated into the regular Corps in 1951.

The Gunny has served far and wide during his military career. France, Holland, England, Germany,

AUG. LEATHERNECK FEATURES K-BAY AS POST OF THE CORPS

Kaneohe Bay, home of the 1st Marine Brigade, is the post of the Corps feature in the August issue of LEATHERNECK Magazine. The latest issue of the all-Marine Corps magazine will be available on the magazine racks of the Marine exchanges here around mid-August.

Another article features a visit to New York's "Boxing Boss" Max. Gen. Melvin L. Krulewitch, USMC (Ret.).

AMSGt. Robert E. Johnson and AGySgt. Joseph J. Mulvihill became "Hawaii Bound" aboard the Military Sea Transport Service USMS General Hugh J. Gaffey to tell you what happens to Marines and their families from the time they report in to San Francisco until the ship docks in Pearl Harbor.

After arriving, the embryo state of today is compared with the Hawaii of 15 years ago in "Hawaii Revisited."

At the Post of the Corps, "Kaneohe Bay" you get a chance to see the Paradise of the Pacific while on "Hawaii Liberty."

Back in the Empire State of New York, you'll read about Woman Marine ACpl. Carla J. Sacco who won runner-up honors in this year's "Queen of the Armed Forces" contest.

Also in New York is the featured Marine Reserve unit for August, the New Rochelle Reservists.

On the sporting scene is the visit with General Krulewitch and the regular "Sports Shorts" along with a side trip to West Virginia to fish for muskies.

Filling out the August issue with the regular features will be the fiction piece, "The Bellyacher."

'SARGE' VICTIM OF HEAT WAVE

The near record heat wave which has plagued the area during the past week took a canine life at K-Bay Sunday.

Sergeant Sarge, the Station's mascot, died at 7 p.m. Cause of his death was given as heat prostration.

The three-year-old English bulldog was a familiar sight to the Marines at K-Bay. He became their mascot in April, 1958.

Late Sunday afternoon Sarge was taken out for his daily walk and was unleashed in an area where he generally romped. Normally he returned to his quarters in the Station Guard House within an hour after each day's run.

Sunday, however, Sarge did not return on schedule.

When a sentry went out to locate Sarge he found the dog dead closely the point where he was unleashed earlier.

Sergeant Sarge was born September 26, 1956, in southern California. As a pup he traveled to Kwajalein Island where he lived for about six months. He visited Oahu in late 1957 with his former owner, Mr. An Phillips, who later gave Sarge to the Kaneohe Marines as their official mascot.

The husky, 50-pound bulldog was out-fitted with a smart "dress uniform" which he proudly wore on many occasions while participating in formal ceremonies.

The Kaneohe Marines have no replacement for Sarge and are looking for another English bulldog which is the Marine Corps' traditional mascot. Practically every Marine post in the world boasts a smartly-trained bulldog as their contribution to a long-standing Corps tradition.

Every day, glaring headlines in our newspapers discuss missile launchings, atom bomb tests, H-bomb tests, nuclear submarine launchings, and new methods of warfare, but hardly a word about the infantryman.

He's not a forgotten implement of war as far as the Marine Corps is concerned, he's the backbone of the Corps in both offensive and defensive combat.

During the past several weeks, infantry companies of the 1st Marine Brigade have been conducting competitive tests to determine the best squad to represent the company in the battalion competition.

From these tests, two infantry squads were selected, one from "Bravo" Co., 1st Bn., 4th Marines and the other from "Hotel Co.," 2d Bn. During the period July 28 and 29, these squads were subjected to various tests to determine the outstanding squad within the Regiment.

The winning squad will represent the 1st Marine Brigade in the Second Annual Unit Combat Marksmanship Competition to be conducted at the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Va., during the period Sept. 8-12. The Brigade's squad will enter competition against outstanding squads from every infantry unit within the Marine Corps.

In determining the squad to represent the Brigade at Quantico, tests were conducted and points awarded the squads based on the overall performances of the squads. Scores were based on the actions of the squads during the test, helicopter lift procedures, orders, formations, fire and maneuver, fire control and accuracy, assault and reorganization, defense, and ABC passive defense measures.

On Tuesday, July 28, the two squads conducted a live firing exercise at the Combat Marksmanship Range, and on Wednesday, July 29, the squads participated in a tactical field exercise at the Waikane Training Area.

The tactical field exercise phase of the competition consisted of a squad level tactical exercise employing helicopters and aggressor troops. As a final phase of the problem, the squads were judged on employing ABC Passive Defense Measures in the field.

Judges for the competition included, Maj. A. S. Dooley, and Capt. R. G. Vass of MAG-13, and Capt. J. F. Ingalls, Lt. M. A. Thompkins, and Lt. J. H. Westmoreland from Brigade Headquarters.

Last year, "Charlie Co.," 1st Bn., 4th Marines, won the competition. Normally, the 13-man unit would have gone to Quantico for participation in the Marine Corps-wide judging. However, a tense word situation at the time cancelled the final eliminations.

The previous year, 1957, "George" Co., 2nd Bn., 4th Marines, captured the honors in local competition and went on to Quantico where they placed third in the Corps-wide event.

The competitive problem is designed to test the effectiveness of small units. The unique program displays the proficiency of representative squads from every regiment in the Marine Corps.

Col. Thrash Becomes MAG-13 C.O.; Col. Hollar Departs for California

Approximately 1600 Leathernecks of Marine Aircraft Group-13 passed in review here Monday afternoon marking the formal change of command for the unit at Platt Field.

Colonel Frank E. Hollar, turned the beribboned organizational colors over to Col. William G. Thrash. This exchange signified the change of command.

On hand to witness the impressive ceremonies were several hundred dependents and noted dignitaries including Maj. Gen. Francis M. McAllister, deputy commander of Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Wieseman, 1st Marine Brigade, FMF, commanding general, Navy Capt. Charles L. Moore, 14th Naval District Air Bases commander, and Col. Marion M. Magruder, MCAS commanding officer.

Col. Thrash and his family arrived in the Isles July 22 aboard the Matsonia.

A veteran of more than 20 years service, the colonel was graduated from the National War College, Washington, D.C., before his assignment.

Among his personal decorations are the Silver Star for bravery in Korea, Legion of Merit with a gold star in lieu of a second award, Distinguished Flying Cross, 10 Air Medals and the Purple Heart.

Col. Hollar, a 19 year veteran, reported to the Brigade early in 1958 from Headquarters U.S. Marine Corps where he directed the Aviation Equipment and Logistics Section.

In 18 years of flying, Col. Hollar has checked out in 112 different aircraft types ranging from props to jets. He flew the first Navy jet (YP-59) in November, 1944.

The colonel served as a scout and torpedo bomber pilot during WWII action at Guadalcanal, Munda, Kahlil and Buka-Bonis in the Solomon Islands.

He and his family will depart Monday aboard the Matsonia for MCAS, El Toro (Santa Ana), Calif.

Formation fly-overs by MA-13 aircraft also highlighted the command-change event. Eighteen F-4 Fury jets (eight each) from Marine Attack Squadrons 212 and 214 and two from Headquarters and Maintenance Squadron-13 led the low altitude fly-by. Then eight sleek Crusaders (F8U) of Marine Fighter Squadron-232 passed over the parade field followed by the rotary-winged "work-horses" from Marine Helicopter Transport Squadron-161. Group safety officer, Maj. Thomas G. Mooney made a 100-foot high speed run in a Crusader across Platt Field climbing into a series of rolls called the "victory roll" which climaxed the ceremonies.

Railroads Extend Military Rates

Reduced rail furlough fares for active duty armed forces personnel traveling in uniform have been extended to June 30, 1960.

This insures that military personnel, traveling in uniform, will continue to receive a 40 per cent reduction when traveling round-trip on railroad coaches.

Tickets are good for 90 days and include regular stopover and baggage privileges.

One reason military personnel can travel so inexpensively is that railroads are not required to collect from them the 10 per cent excise tax required of other passengers traveling commercial carriers.

The special fare was instituted in 1950 by the Trunk-Line-Central Passenger Committee, a division of the Traffic Executive Association-Eastern Railroads.

Complete information on furlough rates is contained in Marine Corps Order 4642.5A.

QUARTERLY GOLF TOURNEY FOR BRIGADE UNITS SET AUG. 6

Brigade Bulletin 1710 announced recently the commencement of the 1st Marine Brigade Quarterly Golf Tournament. The first match of the tourney will get underway on Aug. 6.

This competition will consist of a monthly tournament for three consecutive months. Each tourney will be a different type and at the end of each quarter a winning team will be declared.

The first tournament will be low net medal play over 18 holes (handicap). Low eight scores of each unit will be counted. Entrants having a bonafide handicap will deduct their handicap to arrive at the net score. Entrants who do not have an established handicap will use the "Callaway System" to determine their handicap for this tourney.

The second tournament will be low gross medal play over 18 holes (no handicap). The team with the lowest total gross for eight players will be declared the winner.

In the third and final tournament, each player's gross score over 18 holes will be used to compute his "Callaway System" handicap. This handicap will be applied to the gross to determine the net score. Fractional numbers will be rounded off to the next higher whole number after the "Callaway Handicap" is deducted. Again the lowest eight net scores will determine the winning team.

In each tourney the eight best scores will be used in scoring. A team must field at least eight players to be considered as participating in the tournament. Players may be substituted by making the flight and tee-off time of the player for whom they are substituting, and making a change of names on the prepared score card.

The winning unit, with eight player's names, will be engraved on the permanent golf plaque in the lounge of the golf clubhouse.

Batmen Blank Pearl Harbor; Drop Thriller to Naval Air

The Hawaii Marine baseball team split two games over the past weekend, downing Pearl Harbor Friday, 5-0 and being edged by Naval Air Sunday, 5-4 in a tense 10-inning afternoon game.

Under the lights of Pearl Harbor against the Admirals, Bill Haywood demonstrated excellent control over the ball and the opposition, scattering eight hits while fanning nine.

Shortstop Rudy Faust and Dave Smalley shared batting honors, each two for four. Smalley belted a drive over the left-center fence with one aboard in the sixth, and rapped a single in the eighth frame.

On behalf of the Admirals, only one player copped two hits, Ror. Eagleton who contributed a double and safety in three trips to the plate.

At Barber's Point, against Naval Air Sunday, the Marines trailed 3-0 until the fourth when they tallied twice. In the sixth, Navy scored again, making it 4-2.

The Leathernecks scored twice in the top of the eighth knotting the score.

In the ninth, both teams failed to score. In the top of the tenth, the Marines were scoreless.

Jim Boyette perked open the bottom of the tenth with a lined double, and was followed down the base paths by a pair of walks.

With a bases loaded, no out situation, Gene Sollie beat out a bunt scoring the winning run.

The Marines continue leading the Hawaii Service League with a 34-14 record, leading SubPac by four games. Naval Air remains in third place, 12 games out, while Pearl Harbor is 27 games behind the league leaders.

By ActSgt. F. J. Blessner

Strike, strike, strike and strike again was the order of the day as the writer had a field day fishing near the Navy pier Sunday evening.

All in all ten fish were landed, eight papio and two barracuda. Two of the papio were over two pounds and one of the barracuda was well over two pounds and measured 26 inches in length. All other fish were one pound or better and the total was 16½ pounds. So far this is the best catch the writer has made around the Air Station.

North Beach also has been producing some terrific mol action within the last two weeks. Capt. R. E. Borders and three companions fished last Friday and Saturday night from the 14th hole of the Klipper course. Using shrimp for bait they accounted for 24 and 26 mol on both of those nights, respectively. The fish averaged two pounds or better and really gave a good account of themselves on the light spinning tackle that the anglers were using.

Fishing should pick up this week as tides will be high during the morning and evening hours. Hot-spots for the weekend will probably be the Navy pier for papio, lal and barracuda and North Beach for mol and ula.

Our next Rod and Gun Club meeting will be on Aug. 12 at 7:30 p.m., building 575, near the senior staff NCO barracks.

Capt. McNamara Cops Pro-Am

ActMSgt. R. Latimer, who incidentally fired a score of 69, on his own, wound up on second place with a combined total of 30-29-59 or thirteen under par and second place award of $10.20.

Five players tied for third place with nine under par 63 performances and will receive an award. They are ActMSgt. Barr, Capt. Patrick, ActCpl. Duffy, HMI Olson, and ActSgt. Newcomb.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE BEGINS

The Women's Division is seeking to expand its golfing sorority and is making a pitch to get more women to join its group.

If any women are interested in taking up the game of golf, now is the time to do it. There is a fine group of gals in the Women's Division who would be most happy to help you get started.

All that is really required to join the ladies group is to show up Thursday morning at 8:15.

Inter-Service Golf Match Set Today

Winding up today at K-Bay's Klipper links is the 72-hole Hawaiian Interservice Golf Tournament.

Tee-off time for the four competing teams is 10 a.m. All interested personnel are invited to view the last 18 holes of play.

At press time the Army narrowly led the Navy, 608 to 610 with the Marine team third with 639 and the Air Force trailing with 656. The teams consist of eight players.

Al Greer, captain of the Marine team, and winner of the Hawaii Marine Tourney and the Burke Open is meeting stiff competition from Army pros Bob Ford and Kelly Kee.

In the event of the tie today, a sudden death 18 hole playoff will be held here tomorrow.

Following the match today at approximately 3 p.m., an awards banquet will be held.

The dive last Saturday was very successful. About 15 club members had a field day bringing in fish and crabs out of clear, calm water.

Approximately 43 pounds of fish and crabs were taken. ActSgt. John Bauer brought his movie camera to the outing and got some excellent shots of the activities. He will show these films at the Aug. 10th meeting of the club.

Trophies were presented last meeting to ActSSgt. J. J. Snead for the largest creature (8½ pound moray eel) and Pfc. G. Weltengel for the largest fish (7½ pound unfile). The fish contest will continue until Sept. 30.

Sixteen men and one girl were present Tuesday at the station pool for the skin and scuba diving test. It was another large turnout and everyone got at least a few minutes use of the scuba gear.

AL CANTELLO AMONG WINNERS IN U.S. - SOVIET TRACK MEET

Three of seven competing servicemen distinguished themselves here with firsts in a United States-Russian two-day meet that once again saw American manpower and Soviet womanhood unbeatable in track and field.

The javelin-throwing Quantico, Va., Marine who holds the world mark in his specialty, Al Cantello, got off a winning heave of 262 feet 5 inches to take first place honors for the military.

In a repeat of last year's split at Moscow, U.S. men won this time 127-108 with 14 of 22 firsts while Russian women stopped the U.S. distaff squad 67-40 amid both rain and sunshine at Franklin Field.

The combined total was again favorable to the Russians, 175-167, but by mutual agreement the competition was scored separately.

Don (Tarzan) Bragg, the high-flying Ft. Dix, N. J., private who holds the world indoor pole vault mark, soared 15 feet 2¾ inches to tie for first but was declared winner because of fewer misses than his Soviet adversary.

Eddie Southern, cadet from Lack-land, AFB, Tex., championed the 400-meter run with a blistering 0:46.2 pace.

Max Truex, AF lieutenant from Oxnard AFB, Calif., won the admiration of the crowd with a disputed third place finish in the 10,000-meter run.

A closing burst gave Truex second place but by the record book he came in third. An error was made in counting the laps out the American team failed to make an official protest within two hours after the race so it stands.

New Wahine Bowling League Sets Deadline

K-Bay Cannoneers Return After Big Island Exercise

Artillery men of the 2nd Bn., 12th Marines returned this week from Pohakuia marking the end of an extensive month-long training period for 1st Marine Brigade units.

The first group of "Cannoneers" arrived at K-Bay by air Monday while the bulk of the troops and equipment returned by LST Floyd County.

During the training period, over 10,000 rounds of artillery ammunition was expended by the battalion's 4.2 inch mortars and 105 howitzers. Night firing was featured with illumination provided by VMA-214. Night displacements were carried out with the occupation of new positions made under black-out conditions.

High-lights of the maneuvers included firing exercises and demonstrations for the 4th Marines and a coordinated firing exercise conducted with MAG-13. In addition to the normal duties performed by the men, the Cannoneers also participated in rifle and pistol team training.

An aggressive safety program paid off during the training period. Not a single serious casualty occurred during the month despite the impressive number of live rounds handled by the artillerymen.

While at Pohakuia, the artillery troops demonstrated their capabilities and limitations to other Brigade Marines. This program was highlighted when a group of MAG-13 pilots on TAD to 3-12 took turns in manning and firing the guns.

Lt. Col. B. H. Elliott, commanding officer of the artillery battalion, stated that the training readiness of the Brigade artillery is the highest and that 3-12 is "ready and on the way" whenever and wherever required.
