Accidents occur

Within a 30-minute span the morning of May 13 two accidents involving dependent children occurred at MCAS Kaneohe Bay.

BOTH CHILDREN, Ranell Noa, the 15-month-old daughter of GySgt Agalevaa Noa, Brigade Service Support Group, and his wife Laalaa, and Roberta Bedworth, the 9-year-old daughter of 1st Lt David Bedworth, 31st Marine Amphibious Unit and his wife Linda, sustained minimal injuries and were treated and released from the Naval Regional Medical Center, Kaneohe Branch Clinic.

Ranell was injured at approximately 7:20 a.m. after she fell from the blue van driven by her mother. Mrs. Noa was making a left turn onto Mokapu Road from the Mokapu Elementary School parking lot when the child fell from the van. Ranell was struck by one of the vehicle's tires.

Sgt Michael Mishler, Marine Air Control Squadron-2, saw the child fall from the van as he traveled west on Mokapu Road. Reacting quickly, he made a U-turn, laid his motorcycle on the curb and rushed over to the van. Sgt Mishler then grabbed the child from beneath the van.

By the time Sgt Mishler carried the child to the curb, Sgt Timothy Fleming, Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, had arrived. Both men applied preventive shock treatment to the little girl until the ambulance arrived.

APPROXIMATELY 20 minutes later, Roberta Bedworth was involved in an automobile-bicycle collision at the intersection of Cushman Avenue and Machalaan Street while on her way to Mokapu Elementary School.

Seaman Richard Walker, Marine Amphibious Unit Service Support Group-31, was the corpsman on duty at the physical fitness testing area across from the accident site. He treated her injuries until the ambulance arrived.

The accident is under investigation.

Well-done

Commandant extends kudos

QUANTICO, Va. — The commandant is pleased to announce that this year's top rifle competition squad, led by Sgt F. Ortiz, is the 1st Squad, 1st Platoon, Company K, 3d Battalion, 8th Marines. The first and second place runners-up are 1st Squad, 1st Platoon, Company G, 2d Battalion, 9th Marines 5th Marine Regiment, and 3d Squad, 2d Platoon, Company K, 3d Battalion, 2d Marines.

OTHER TOP squads deserving recognition for progressing to the finals are listed in numerical sequence by regiment and not in order of finish:

1st Squad, 3d Platoon, Company F, 2d Battalion, 1st Marines
1st Squad, 1st Platoon, Company F, 2d Battalion, 3d Marines
1st Squad, 2d Platoon, Company I, 3d Battalion, 4th Marines
1st Squad, 1st Platoon, Company I, 3d Battalion, 6th Marines
1st Squad, 1st Platoon, Company C, 1st Battalion, 7th Marines
2d Squad, 2d Platoon, Company K, 3d Battalion, 1st Marines, 9th Marines.

The participating squads were recognized for their superb performance at the Marine Barracks, Washington, D.C. during the evening parade on May 18.

LtGen Richard Carey, commanding general, Marine Corps Development and Education Command, presented the annual Marine Corps Squad Combat Competition Trophy to the 8th Marines for retention until the 1982 competition.

In addition, each member of the first, second and third place squads was presented a gold, silver, or bronze annual rifle squad combat competition badge which is authorized for wear in accordance with Marine Corps and Navy uniform regulations.

THERE WERE five events in this year's competition. The first event tested marksmanship, call for and adjustment of fire and night firing. The second tested each squad in combat stamina and the third evaluated the preparation, planning, patrol order and conduct of a daylight security patrol.

The fourth event included a helicopter-borne assault, movement or contact and the squad live-fire attack of an enemy held objective. The fifth tested the establishment, conduct and withdrawal of a combat outpost.

Each squad brought to the competition months of intense training and preparation combined with a healthy spirit of enthusiasm and aggressiveness. The performance of all participants reflected the esprit and professionalism that epitomizes the Marine Corps Rifle Squad.

ADDITIONALLY, the successful culmination of the 1981 squad competition is due in no small part to the dedication and outstanding effort put forth by all those personnel involved in supporting, evaluating and organizing the event.

From the commandant a well done is extended to both participants and supporting personnel.

MILITARY HOSPITALITY — People galore visited Hickam Air Force Base Saturday to view dozens of military static displays in commemoration of Armed Forces Day. The open house featured Leathernecks of the 1st Marine Brigade who displayed and explained the functions of several sophisticated weapons, aircraft and Landing Vehicle Tracked Personnel Carriers. Battle-dressed, camouflaged Devil Dogs of Company A, 3d Reconnaissance Battalion, 1st Marine Brigade answered questions about their swift, silent and deadly trade while reserve Marines of 4th Force Reconnaissance Battalion performed thrilling rappelling and Special Patrol Insertion and Extraction exercises before the awestruck spectators. At the conclusion of the open house, it was apparent that almost everyone in attendance was impressed with the professionalism of the United States Armed Forces.

Memorial Day Message

Memorial Day belongs to the living. For there is no Memorial Day if we, the living, fail to remember our fellow Americans who gave the best years of their lives, their health, and often life itself in the service of our country.

Our wounded Marines in veterans hospitals or wherever they may be — they remember. The parents, widows and children of Marines killed in battle — they remember. All those who have ever lost a loved one in our country's service — they remember, and they look to us who form their remaining Marine family to help them bear a burden they must carry day after day, year after year.

Memorial Day gives us a chance to pay a little on that debt — the debt that all Americans owe to the ones who died for our country and, most assuredly, for our freedom.

To all Marines, wherever you are serving on this Memorial Day, I salute you for the generosity of spirit that causes you to serve our country. I ask you to join me in a pledge, as Lincoln so beautifully stated it, "that these dead shall not have died in vain."

We Marines have a long tradition of caring for our own. Memorial Day cuts to the heart of that pledge. Semper fidelis, Marines!

Queen of the World — The Hawaiian Pilgrim Virgin of Fatima statue will be on display at the air station's chapel, Friday through May 29. The statue, one of 12 originals throughout the world, is carved from wood into the likeness of Mary as she appeared to the three children of Fatima in 1917. In 1946 Pope Pius XII crowned the original statue "Queen of the World." This statue was given to the people of Hawaii in 1947 through Matthew Alencastre, a Catholic priest. Since July 1978, the Holy Name Society of Hawaii has sponsored the parish visitation program as a diocesan service. The opening ceremony will be Friday at 7 p.m. For a schedule of subsequent masses and more information, call the chapel at 257-3182.

EDITORIAL / OPINION

Street Scoop

If you could, what is the one thing on the air station you would improve and why?

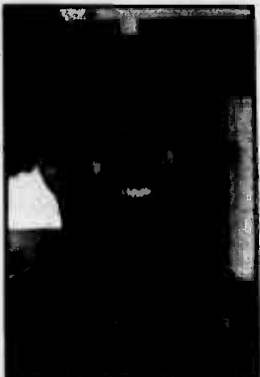

GySgt John Kimbrel, BSSG: "The recreation facilities because too many Marines have to go out in town to enjoy themselves."

HM-2 Lewis Arnold, 2/3: "Barracks living space and conditions. These are the poorest barracks I've seen in my enlistment."

LCpl Bob Webb, 2/3: "The ability to get out in town. The liberty bus only runs at night and doesn't cater to Marines with liberty during the day."

Sgt Roland Winborn, H&MS-24: "Disbursing. When Marines first get to this island they have to wait three to four pay periods before they can get their money other than base pay."

Capt Rob Gerlaugh, 1/3: "Improve the club systems to give Marines an alternative to the higher priced clubs and entertainment in Honolulu."

Inspector General comments

by SSgt Dennis Litalien

During the week of May 11, BrigGen Clyde Dean, inspector general of the Marine Corps and his team of inspectors examined and critiqued all phases of Marine Corps operations in Hawaii. The following interview was conducted during BrigGen Dean's visit.

HAWAII MARINE: What was the purpose of this inspection?

BrigGen Dean: The purpose of this inspection basically is to assist in keeping the commandant advised on the status of the Marine Corps. With this process, of course, is a determination of the readiness of the organizations being inspected, their assigned missions, and also to determine the compliance of Marine Corps organizations with the doctrines, policies and procedures established by our commandant.

HAWAII MARINE: How many Inspector General's inspections will be conducted Marine Corps-wide this year?

BrigGen Dean: This year, approximately 200 Inspector General inspections will be conducted throughout the Marine Corps.

HAWAII MARINE: How often is each command inspected?

BrigGen Dean: Each major command in the Marine Corps is inspected approximately once every three years. Smaller Marine Corps units, such as Marine Barracks and Inspector Instructor Staffs, are normally done each year.

HAWAII MARINE: Where will the IG team be going when it leaves here?

BrigGen Dean: When the IG teams depart Hawaii, two will return to Washington, D.C. to prepare for inspections elsewhere; one of the two remaining teams will proceed to Guam and then on to the Philippines and the other team will proceed to Japan.

HAWAII MARINE: Was there any area of particular emphasis here?

BrigGen Dean: We did not arrive here with areas of specific interest for this particular inspection. I might add however, that combat readiness and the individual welfare and well-being of our Marines and, in the case of Marines who have their dependents with them, of their dependents are always of great interest in an inspection of this type.

HAWAII MARINE: What areas are being given special emphasis Marine Corps-wide?

BrigGen Dean: We are always interested, when we evaluate an organization's combat readiness, in the readiness and status of its weapons systems and equipment, which always impacts directly on such areas as the maintenance of ordnance and aviation safety. In regard to the individual welfare and well-being of our Marines, we are always interested in such matters as pay.

HAWAII MARINE: Do you have any comments as to how the 1st Marine Brigade and MCAS Kaneohe Bay did on their inspection?

BrigGen Dean: The inspections went very well. We presented our critique of the air station to Col Sautter and our evaluation of the 1st Marine Brigade to BrigMcClintock.

HAWAII MARINE: How are members of the IG team selected?

BrigGen Dean: Within the Inspection Division at Headquarters Marine Corps, we have four inspector general teams assigned as an integral part of that organization. These four teams are augmented by Marines, naval personnel and civilians with expertise in the various functional areas. They are designated for these inspections by their organizations from various functional areas in Headquarters Marine Corps. When we find it necessary, we call upon major field commands to provide Marines, naval personnel and civilians with the expertise required to assist with these inspections. In the case of the inspection of units here in Hawaii our Marine, naval personnel and civilian inspectors have come from Washington and both East and West Coast major commands.

HAWAII MARINE: Can you cite any areas that were particularly outstanding?

BrigGen Dean: The organizations in Hawaii have had some outstanding areas, and I might add before I cite those areas that in an inspector general's inspection, for a functional area to be deemed outstanding, it must indeed, be among the best the inspector general has ever seen anywhere in the Marine Corps. It is my pleasure to state that within the 1st Marine Brigade, career planning was deemed to be outstanding. Within the air station, four areas were rated outstanding. Those areas are morale, career planning, aircraft maintenance and building and grounds.

HAWAII MARINE: Do you have any final comments to make?

BrigGen Dean: I would certainly like to share with the Marines, naval personnel and civilian staffs in Hawaii that the long hours and days of their preparation have not gone unnoticed. The great efforts to prepare for this inspection by the organizations have been obvious. On behalf of all of our inspectors, I would like to express my appreciation for the commendable hospitality, assistance and support we have enjoyed from each of the organizations we have visited. In my personal role as inspector general, and in addition to the many technical and functional area inspections that have been conducted, I have tried to take advantage of every opportunity to talk with your fine Marines, naval personnel, both officer and enlisted, with your fine civilian staff, and with your dependents in environments of both work and play. I think I might best describe what I personally was looking for as that certain twinkle in the eye. It has indeed been my pleasure to observe that that twinkle pervades the commands it has been our privilege to inspect. It shall be my pleasure to so report to our commandant.

I would be remiss if I did not make one final point. It has been our special pleasure to have the privilege of visiting you because of reasons which I might term of a national interest scale. I am sure that it is obvious to all, that we have been observing across our great nation a rekindling of interest for the improvement of our national defense posture and a reawakening to the fact that we are indeed a mar' time power. Within the Marine Corps we can easily see the importance of Marine Corps' roles and missions within that maritime strategy.

Retrospect

Are Marines really shouldering responsibilities?

by Sgt Cheryl Martin

Another Inspector General's Inspection has come and gone and a giant sigh of relief can be heard all over the air station.

Now we can get back to "normal." The 1st Marine Brigade and Marine Corps Air Station Kaneohe Bay are once again A.J. squared away. Unfortunately for some, it took two months to do it. I'm not saying that some units aren't always prepared for the biggy, but the majority of us go into a panic approximately two months before a major inspection.

Offices close down to get the routine paperwork caught up, office lights burn until zero dark thirty and everyone bones up on the chain of command and essential subjects.

The troops learn to drill all over again (some having to figure out which is their left foot and which is their right) the paperwork that's been swept under the carpet for a year suddenly appears in the guy's desk who got out of the Corps last summer and the pre-pre-pre IG's begin. The pre-pre-pre IG starts in the office. Noncommissioned officers in-charge set up clothing inspections for their people, get dog tags, make sure training records are in order, refile the files and generally reorganize their work sections.

Next comes the pre-pre IG which is where the assistant OICs come in. Their NCOICs have made their jobs a little easier by getting everyone's ducks in line. The discrepancies are getting fewer and less important.

The pre-pre IG is next. It's time for the OICs to get involved and make their necessary changes, which should be minimal by now.

We're almost home. The pre-IG is easy. Commanding officers inspect and offer great words of wisdom and encouragement. Somehow they don't make the upcoming inspection any easier to face.

Along with inspection preparations are such things as barracks duty, quarterly physical fitness tests, daily tasks and social lives. These things don't just "go away" because the IG is coming.

Also during this period a common malady called "lack of sleep" occurs. Symptoms are droopy eyelids, uncontrollable grumpiness, and the desire to "let someone else do it."

When you can grab a catnap, you find yourself mumbling your third general order or the secretary of the Navy's name. You flip over on your stomach when a mysterious voice shouts "ABOUT FACE!" Your only consolation during this period is that it will soon be over.

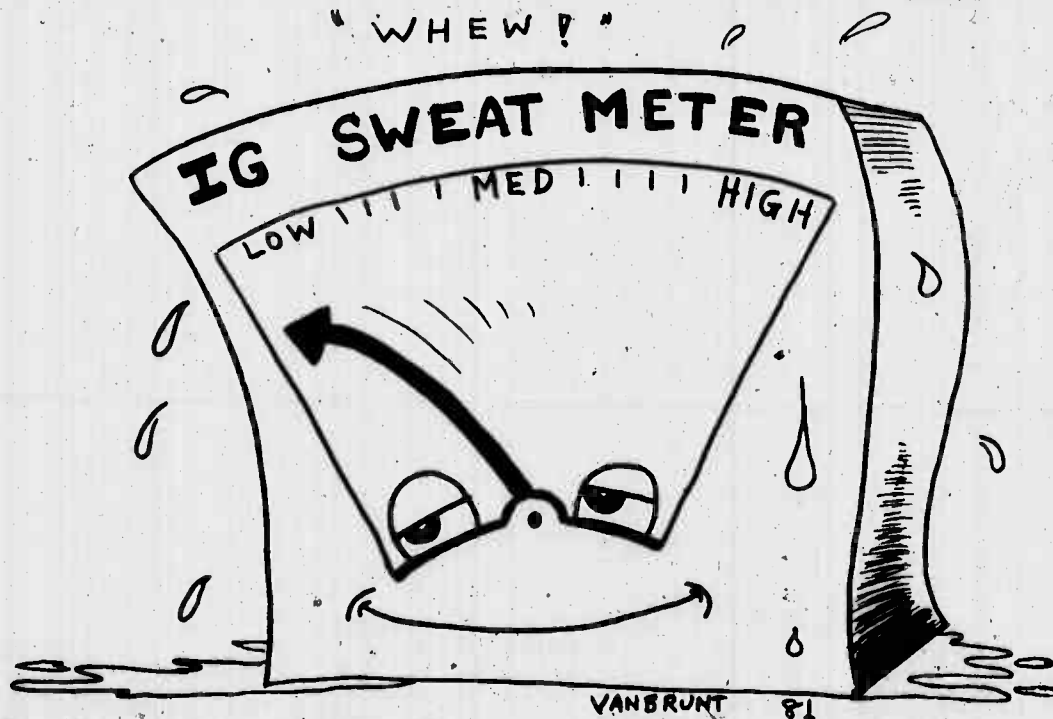

Why, if the Marine Corps is called a "force in readiness" do we have to go through all of this?

If the system was to run smoothly every day we wouldn't have to run around before the inspection like chickens with no heads.

It is the responsibility of all Marines to do their jobs to the best of their abilities. We are required to know our essential subjects and our jobs. We are getting paid to know how to drill, to be able to pass a PFT, to have our uniforms squared away at all times and to be prepared for anything.

If each Marine accepted his responsibility and stayed on top of things there would be no need to "prepare for the IG." It should be just another routine inspection.

Now that another one has come and gone, will the backsliding begin?

Vandalism plagues Liberty Bus

Troublemakers spoil ride for others

by SSgt Dennis Litalien

During recent months there has been a marked increase in vandalism and threats against patrons and drivers of the liberty bus.

This is another instance where the actions of a small, irresponsible group of troublemakers is ruining a good thing for the majority.

The liberty bus service was instituted to make it easier and safer for Marines to travel to and from Waikiki. It has worked very well and most Marines have shown their appreciation by conducting themselves in a mature fashion.

Then there are the others. They are the drunk/wonders who can't operate without constant supervision. Oftentimes they get their thrills by starting fights with drivers and passengers. They receive a big kick from yelling obscenities at pedestrians. It is sad but true that when the civilians express their dislike for Marines, chances are they have gained that distaste through a meeting with one of these immature troublemakers.

So far they've managed to have their own way on the liberty bus. Fortunately, it looks like that is going to change.

Last month the 1st Marine Brigade and the air station published a joint order assigning a Liberty Bus Noncommissioned Officer. All brigade and station sergeants are eligible to stand the duty. It is the Liberty Bus NCO's responsibility to ensure order and discipline on the bus.

I'm pleased with the action being taken. The drivers have suffered enough abuse. They deserve a great deal of credit for their restraint and performance, but they aren't on the bus to babysit. They are paid to drive.

So it appears the disorderly conduct of the past will disappear. Those who patronize the liberty bus can do their part by assisting the Liberty Bus NCOs whenever the need arises. These Marines are handling a tough job and can use all the cooperation they can get.

The choice, in this case, is clear-cut. Either the situation improves or chances are there won't be a liberty bus anymore. Patrons can take it from there.

My Turn

Mahalo

I wanted to take some time to express my appreciation to the air station's Provost Marshal's Office. I am a Navy corpsman who recently finished a tour of night duty in the clinic's Emergency Room.

The assistance I received from the Marines of PMO helped us provide good, efficient emergency care and was often a determining factor in treating patients with potentially serious conditions.

Because of the limited number of doctors stationed here, we do not have a medical officer on board past 10 p.m. on weekdays and 4 p.m. on weekends. I am confident that those of us standing night duty can professionally administer needed, life-saving procedures until further definitive care can be rendered, while having limited capabilities and personnel.

It is reassuring to know that in an emergency, help is ready, willing and able from PMO, whether it's assistance in retrieving an empty medication bottle needed to diagnose and treat an overdose patient, finding the parents of an injured child, restraining an intoxicated Marine or providing an ambulance escort to the scene of an accident.

The aid they render to this clinic's emergency care system is invaluable.

To this fine unit of Marines go my sincere thanks, deepening admiration and continued respect. It is great to be part of this Navy-Marine Corps team, working toward the goal of providing better emergency care to those people living and working here at MCAS Kaneohe Bay.

HM-2 Thomas Duddy

Musical madness

The hot weather is definitely here, which means all windows will be opened day and night. So, it is up to each one of us to respect the next person and keep our music within our own listening range.

This is especially important before 8 a.m. for the Marines who work a 4-12 shift; and after 9 p.m. Not only do a lot of them work 7-3 but a lot of women work during the day as housewives or in jobs outside the home.

It is your privilege to listen to the kind of music you like but, please, don't push it on your neighbors. Close your windows and suffer from the heat or buy earphones.

On The Screen

What would happen if the Great White Shark from Jaws was transformed into a 30-foot-long man-eating reptile, placed in the sewer system of a large city and allowed to prey on its terrified inhabitants?

The result is a gruesome though somewhat entertaining horror film entitled Alligator.

All the basic ingredients of Jaws are repeated in Alligator, a nightmarish monster, a beleaguered policeman, the hard-boiled bounty hunter, the alligator expert . . . and nausea. The recipe may be similar, but unfortunately the results are disappointing.

The movie is a mixture of the good and bad qualities frequently found in modern horror films. For instance there is a terrific sequence where Ramon (that is the gator's name), shows up uninvited at a wedding reception. The ensuing panic and hysteria is reminiscent of the old 'Godzilla eats Tokyo' movies. It's interesting stuff.

There are moments, many of them, when the film becomes mired in the sludge of simulated gore. Many of today's filmmakers seem to believe a good horror film requires as much blood and guts as they can pump into it.

That may be debatable, but Alligator is at its scariest when its subtle moments are built upon. Those are the times that suspense makes the movie work. Gore has some limited shock value but that is about all.

The acting in this film is adequate. Robert Forster is believable as the cop and Robin Riker is pleasant as the reptile expert (Forster's romantic interest).

The real star is Ramon. Unfortunately he has little going for him. Take Bruce, the shark from Jaws, for example. He had the class and good taste to hang out near a quaint summer resort and swallow mostly well-to-do victims. Ramon lives in a sewer and eats anything that moves. He has potential as a cult-hero with the punk rock crowd.

Taken as a whole, Alligator is a fair horror film. Its big weakness is it uses a familiar storyline and this version can't compare to the original. I also recommend that young children be kept from viewing this film. It's extremely graphic and could be disturbing for some people.

Put simply, if you enjoy watching people being devoured by an overgrown handbag, then Alligator is for you.

Americans honor unselfish heroes

On May 25 Americans worldwide will pay tribute to the men and women of past Wars. Wreaths and bouquets of flowers will be placed on the graves of servicepeople and bands honoring the unselfish war heroes will march through towns all around the United States.

MEMORIAL Day, normally celebrated May 30, is a tradition almost as old as time itself. Throughout history civilizations, including the Greeks and Romans, honored their dead by decorating their graves. This is a tradition people continue to practice. Today almost every country has a time set aside to remember not only their people who gave their lives in battle, but to pay personal tribute to family and friends who have passed away.

The observance of Memorial Day in the United States has been attributed to different people and various localities. It is claimed that in Boalsburg, Penn. Emma Hunter instituted the idea during 1864 when she carried flowers to her father's tomb.

That day Emma met a Mrs. Meyer in the cemetery visiting her son's grave. Mrs. Meyer's son had been killed in the war and the two women decided to meet the next year to decorate the graves again.

GRADUALLY, other townspeople began decorating the graves of people who had given their lives in battle. Eventually a sign was erected noting the American village of Boalsburg as the birthplace of Memorial Day.

Many other townspeople honored loved ones who died during the wars by decorating their graves, but it wasn't until 1873 that the day was observed as a legal holiday. New York took the first step as a state to make the observance a holiday and Memorial Day is now a holiday set by presidential proclamation.

In 1938, 1800 Civil War veterans from all over the United States met together at Gettysburg to honor their brothers on the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg.

TWENTY YEARS later, in Arlington National Cemetery at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier of World War I, two unidentified men (one representing those of World War II and the other those of the Korean conflict) were interred beside the soldier whose casket had been placed there on Armistice Day in 1921.

Throughout the world Memorial Day is observed wherever American soldiers are buried. It is a time not only to honor those who made the supreme sacrifice, but to stress the futility of war and express hope for a lasting world peace.

Board speeds review process

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A new board to speed the evaluation review process of fitness reports has been established here.

The "Performance Evaluation Review Board," designed to help the Board for Correction of Naval Records, formalizes the appeal process and lets the Marine Corps carry out its functions.

NOW, APPEALS by Marines will be sent directly to PERB, and if necessary PERB will send them to BCNR for action.

Previously, appeals went straight to BCNR and were then sent to the Commandant of the Marine Corps for comments and recommendations. The addition of PERB puts the process in its proper and logical sequence, according to officials here.

At the present time, the board's sole purpose is making corrections to and removing performance evaluations (fitness reports) from official files.

THERE ARE two types of errors which can be corrected by PERB — administrative and substantive (difference in judgment calls). Administrative errors are fairly easy to correct. Substantive errors involve more time.

Marines who feel they have been judged with bias should follow the guidelines set in Marine Corps Order P1610.7B — the Performance Evaluation System Order.

Marines may appeal any report they feel is incorrect, inaccurate, or violates the Performance Evaluation Systems Order. However, before such a step is taken, the individual Marine should try to work it out with both his reporting senior and reviewing officer, officials here added.

"FITNESS reports are used for personnel management decisions," stated an official here. "Therefore, it is important to correct any errors as soon as possible."

Any appeals denied or partially denied are automatically forwarded to BCNR for final consideration. Copies of denials made by PERB are forwarded to the petitioner.

For more information on the Performance Evaluation Review Board, see Marine Corps Order 1610.11.

HAWAII
MARINE

May 22, 1912:

by GySgt Bill Matthews

"The name's Cunningham and flying used to be the game. A few of you might've heard of me. Every year about this time I like to mosey around the Corps to take a look-see and keep current. I've been doing it for about 69 years.

FOR THOSE of you who don't remember me or are not up on your history, allow me to introduce myself. My first name is Al, and they say that on May 22, 1912, when I reported into that new Naval Aviation Camp in Annapolis, Md., I made history. They say that my arrival was the beginning of Marine Corps Aviation. But, let me tell you how it really was.

Since Orville's and Wilbur's names became household words in 1903, I've had a mighty keen desire to fly one of those new fangled aeroplanes. To soar like a bird was my ambition.

Now most of you Marines have heard that old expression of being in the right place at the right time, and that's exactly what happened in my case. I had heard through the grapevine that the Corps was looking for someone crazy enough to try flying one of those machines and I applied for the job.

That following July, I was ordered to the Burgess Aeroplane Company in Marblehead Mass. I remember thinking to myself, 'one marblehead reporting to another.'

AFTER A month of flight school with the AX-1, bat boat, biplane, and a whole two hours and 40 minutes of intense instruction, I made my first solo. I remember the elation I felt after pushing the rudder with my feet and getting airborne for the first time. When I think back to that hot August day in 1912 I still get those butterflies in my stomach. But it was worth it.

That feeling of chagrin soon changed to exhilaration as I soared higher and higher. It wasn't long after that flight that they made me Naval Aviator No. 5 and I, Al Cunningham got to sit on the prestigious Chamber's Board. Composed of six naval officers and me, the board was convened to draw up "a plan for the organization of a Naval aeronautical service."

It was about that time that I really started to feel the importance of my position. It was like having a million dollars at your fingertips and not knowing what to do with it, or inventing something super and not having the money to build it.

I KNEW THAT those flying machines had extraordinary potential in our Corps and my being a member of that board ensured that the Corps would have a say in their use.

After flight school, my buddies and I did take part in a couple of, at that time, daring experiments. Old Lt. Bernard "Banney" Smith, the Corps' second aviator, was the first guy to throw a bomb out of a naval plane. Lt. Frank Evans was the first man to loop his seaplane, and I even made news when I got catapulted from a battleship.

Yeah, things have really changed from those days. I look around now and I hardly can believe I had a hand in starting this thing we all call Marine aviation.

I LOOK BACK to 1919, when Lt. Lawson Sanderson, flying with the fourth squadron in Haiti, introduced "dive bombing." This was just a prelude however.

I remember that on July 16, 1927, Marine close air support was born. Approximately 38 Marines and 49 Nicaraguan National Guardsmen were attacked by over 500 Sandinistas in Ocotol, Nicaragua. At 10:30 that morning Lt. H.D. Boyden and gunner Michael Wodarczyk flew over the area on a reconnaissance.

Boyden saw that the garrison was under attack and landed to get more information. Wodarczyk strafed the attackers to protect commander, gave the order to 'take such steps deemed most effective.' Marines immediately manned five DH-4Bs, one-engine, two crew, observation biplanes and by 2:35 that afternoon, were engaged in the first close air support of ground troops. The Sandinistas were not prepared for the devastating accuracy of the Marine Aviation team. They soon broke and fled from the open field where they had been attacking the Marines.

Boyden until he was ready to take off. The gunner continued to strafe the attackers for another 20 minutes before departing with his pilot. When both Marines reached the rear, BrigGen Logan Feland, the brigade

Since that time, all around the world, many enemies have felt the wrath of the Leatherneck's air team. Through World War I the Banana Wars, World War II, Korea and Vietnam the Marine Corps has led the way in military aviation.

Why, I remember the confusion and anger around here in Kaneohe on a warm day in 1941 when the Japanese were on their way to Pearl Harbor.

IN LATER years I watched this station turn from a Naval Air Station to one that accommodates Marines.

Times have changed since I first boarded that AX-1 biplane and started Marine Aviation. Marines have come and gone, and the planes you guys fly are modern, sleek versions of that old biplane I used to drive. But, there is still one thing that remains the same. Marines. They still look about the same as they did in my days. They still have within them the fundamentals of tradition, discipline and motivation that have characterized all Marines down through the ages.

Being a ghost, you can't see that pleased smile on my face. But if you could, you would also see the pride that shows.

I have seen aviation in the 'old' Corps and the 'new,' and I'm more than satisfied with both. See you next year and happy aviation birthday!

Arresting gear gets workout

Recovery unit shoots for goal

by Sgt Lamar Johnson

Today marks the 28,950 executed aircraft arrests made by the Marine Air Base Squadron-24 Aircraft Recovery Unit, 1st Marine Brigade.

CWO-2 Bill Brenek, officer-in-charge of the unit, said, "I took charge of this unit in 1978. The majority of the men I had then are still with us now. In 1978, we accomplished a milestone of 25,000 aircraft arrests. Our present goal is to reach 30,000."

HE CONTINUED, "With the teamwork I've seen, I can truly say I admire the professional abilities of all these Marines. They consistently keep safety in mind, which has resulted in no aircraft recovery mishaps in the three years we've been together."

The 50 Marine Expeditionary Airfield Technicians in the unit are responsible for maintaining operational and intermediate maintenance on expeditionary airfield equipment.

CWO-2 Brenek pointed out "Although Aircraft recovery is only one of our functions, it's the mainstay of the expeditionary airfield."

THE OVERALL mission of MAB-24 Aircraft Recovery Unit is to install, operate and maintain expeditionary arresting gear, optical landing systems, expeditionary airfield lighting and visual aids.

The work includes continuous operation of the M-21 Emergency Expeditionary Arresting Equipment, and Optical Landing System on station to supplement MCAS Kaneohe Bay, in support of Marine Aircraft Group-24's tactical fixed wing aircraft.

Two crews of seven men work in shifts in the "runway shack" at the air station's main runway, adjacent to West Field. The aircraft recovery Marines provide arresting capabilities for fixed wing aircraft on a daily basis.

ACCORDING TO Crew Leader Sgt Casey Foster, "We handle aircraft emergencies before the Station Crash Crew team tends to them."

"Normally we perform recovery missions with F-4s, TA-4s and other aircraft, however, we can arrest an aircraft of any sort as long as it has a tailhook."

He added, "Using the M-21 Arresting Gear is normal procedure for us. It takes us only 60 seconds to halt an aircraft on a regular landing."

"We maintain two E-28s and two E-5 Chain Gear versions for emergencies. The choice between the two is determined by the weight of the aircraft when it is downed with explosives and fuel," said Sgt Foster.

"THE E-28 model has a faster retracting time that forces quicker stops. The E-5 version is our 'last chance' arresting gear. The last time it was used for an extreme emergency was in 1977."

After the men have prepared the M-21 for a landing recovery, it can bring an F-4 aircraft weighing 46,000 pounds and traveling a speed of 135 knots, to a complete halt at 650 to 700 feet in a matter of seconds after runway contact.

The M-21 is a hydrodynamic arrest unit that uses a vortex principle of energy absorption. The arresting engine consists of a mechanically driven, diesel powered retract system and energy absorber.

THE DESIGN energy of the system is in excess of 56 million foot-pounds, using 11-inch nylon tapes with a tape runout of approximately 650 feet. Each energy absorber is bound to the flight deck by 16 explosive type earth anchors and 36 cross-shaped cruciform stakes.

Between all of this special design equipment is a metal spun cable stretched across the runway. A tailhook on the rear of an aircraft picks up the cable which is center mounted two inches from the deck. This begins the high speed recovery.

Marines of Aircraft Recovery not only provide routine and emergency aircraft arresting capabilities, they also help strengthen the economics of the fixed wing aviation community at the air station.

CWO-2 BRENEK explained "Without the aircraft, arrest capabilities, pilots would have to shut down their engines to repack their drag parachutes and to refuel. This is time consuming and costly."

"Our mission is to provide the squadrons with a capability to conduct back-to-back missions. There's where the savings come in," he said.

"In using the arresting gear for flight landings, drag chutes are not needed and the pilot's shutting down process is eliminated," added CWO-2 Brenek.

He concluded, "One thing is for sure, though. My men never have to worry about having practice drills in aircraft arrests. Every one we conduct is an actuality."

HOLD THE LINE PLEASE—An F-4 aircraft of Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-235, Marine Aircraft Group-24 MCAS Kaneohe Bay, is arrested by M-21 Emergency Expeditionary Aircraft Arresting Equipment on the air station's main runway.

Though this is not an emergency, the M-21 Equipment, operated by the Marine Air Base Squadron-24, Aircraft Recovery Unit, is capable of stopping an F-4 traveling at 135 knots, weighing 46,000 pounds within 650 to 700 feet only seconds after runway contact.

Maintenance Marines safeguard aircraft

by Sgt Nora Parrish

Ground support equipment, maintenance control, briefings, ordnance, radar, plane captains, hydraulics, metal shops...who needs them? The Corps flight crews...that's who.

Before an aircraft leaves MCAS Kaneohe Bay someone from each of those shops will come in contact with it.

FOR EXAMPLE, launching an F-48 aircraft from Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-235 involves about 30 squadron Marines. That figure includes people from each of the squadrons' maintenance shops and a pilot and radar intercept officer.

The pilot and RIO enter the ready room about an hour, and a half before flight time for briefings on weather conditions, their mission and other information concerning the flight. The brief is given by the mission commander.

Once the crewmembers are briefed, they obtain flight gear from the flight equipment room. After suiting up for the flight the pilot goes to maintenance control to check out the aircraft and read about the plane's history.

"THE CORRECTED discrepancies of the last 10 flights are kept in a book here so the pilot can know what has recently gone wrong with the aircraft," said 1st Lt. Gil Diaz, maintenance control officer-in-charge. "By looking at the past discrepancies he knows what to anticipate while flying."

By the time the pilot reaches maintenance control the plane captain has already been there and completed part of a Flight Readiness Evaluation Data Sheet. He has filled in items on the FREDs, such as the fuel and oil level in the F-48. In addition, a maintenance control person has signed the FREDs, stating the aircraft is safe for flight.

ONCE THE pilot has checked the information included on the FREDs by the previous two people he signs, accepting the aircraft as it is.

Meanwhile, the RIO has been busy in the radar shop. He's checked out a Tactical Information Retrieval System (TIRS) box records information concerning the flight for future reference.

By the time the rest of the crew arrives at the assigned aircraft the plane captain has already been working on the flight for about half an hour.

"AS A PLANE captain, I make sure that the aircraft is ready to fly," explained LCpl Thomas Lantry. "I pull all but one seat pin on the crew's seats so that they will work properly if they are needed."

The last pin is pulled by the crew just before the engine is started. This pin will prevent an accidental ejection while the crew takes their seats."

Plane captains also has power, the crew checks with the ready room to ensure that the radios are working. Moving parts, including wings and tail flaps, are also checked for proper movement.

THE PILOT and RIO also check over the aircraft before climbing into the cockpits. But before they do that, ordnance crews mount any missiles being carried by the aircraft.

Once the pilots are ready to start the aircraft, they signal the ground support equipment crews. Since the F-48 has no electrical power, GSE supplies it. An NC-10 is hooked to the plane to supply electrical power and a 105 Jet Starting Unit pumps hot air into the aircraft. The hot air starts the turbines turning which prevents metal stress.

WHEN THE aircraft has power, the crew checks with the ready room to ensure that the radios are working. Moving parts, including wings and tail flaps, are also checked for proper movement.

When it is determined that the aircraft is ready the plane captain signals the crew and they taxi to the runway. Their radio frequency is switched to the tower to prepare for take-off.

From rev-up to take-off, at least one person from each of the squadrons' maintenance shops stand by in case the crew experiences problems.

While the aircraft progresses through each stage of its take-off, the squadron support Marines witness the results of their assigned responsibilities. But a part of them remains inside the jet even while airborne.

THAT PART of them is the confidence felt by the pilot and the RIO that the flight and ground crews have done everything possible to get the aircraft off the ground safely.

LOADIN' UP—Sgt Guy Price, Ordnance Shop, Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-235, loads an AIM-7, Sparrow-3 RADAR-guided missile onto an F-48 Phantom fighter plane. Price's skill is just one of approximately 30 skills needed to launch one F-48 aircraft.

Marines knock Hertz from driver's seat

by Cpl Charlie Marshall

YOU'RE OUT!!! — SSgt Joe Ramirez is called out as he slides into second base during the second game of a doubleheader pitting the Marine Varsity Varsity team against Hertz Saturday at Risely Field. The varsity team won both games by scores of 21-2 and 17-11 giving them 19 wins and one loss for the season.

The Hawaii Marine Varsity softball team celebrated Armed Forces Day with back-to-back wins against Hertz, demolishing them, 21-2 and 17-11 in a doubleheader Saturday at Risely Field.

The Marine team now stands with 19 wins and one loss for the season, retaining first place in their division.

Although Hertz had the home field advantage in the first game, when they came to bat in the bottom of the first, the Marines had already scored five runs from six hits, two of the hits being home runs. Hertz came to bat and went down one, two, three.

Both teams failed to score in the second inning keeping the score 5-0.

The third inning was magic for the Marines as they destroyed

Hertz's pitcher, Ray Aarona, with 10 hits. The first two batters for the Marines, Cpl Dino Roman and SSgt Joe Blackburn started the inning with home runs. Capt Rick Caldwell and Sgts Scott Nobles and Steve Schmidt hit singles and SSgt Joe Ramirez's base hit drove in two more runs. Aarona, not taking any chances with SSgt Gurney Holly after he hit a home run in the first, walked him to load the bases again. WO-1 John Roberts singled to bring home two more runs and the batting order started all over again. A single, two doubles and another home run ended the inning for the Marines and they took the field after scoring 13 runs.

Hertz did make it on to the scoreboard in the fourth. Wes Yamasaki singled into center field to start the inning. Roger Choy Foo doubled to score Yamasaki and later crossed the plate by John Wright's sacrifice.

The Marines had three more runs in the fifth to make the score, 21-2. Hertz failed to score again and the Marines had their 18th victory this year.

The tables turned during the second game as Hertz jumped out to a 5-1 lead after the first inning and increased it to 7-5 after the second. Hertz scored two more in the third and the Marines were still down, 9-7 at the end of four innings.

With three innings left to play the Marines decided to get serious to win the second game. Six base hits in a row followed by a Holly double added eight more Marine runs and they took the lead for the first time, 15-9. Three more singles added another run and the varsity team went into the last inning on top, 16-9.

Hertz did manage to hit a home run in the seventh and scored another run but they still fell short of the 17 runs the Marines had accumulated.

After a good day of softball the Marines outhit Hertz 49-28 and outscored them, 38-13. But it was a slow day for home runs as the varsity only hit six and Hertz hit one.

Sportnotes

The intramural winners in the open doubles division for the Spring 1981 Racquetball Division Program were GySgt Manny Maldonado, Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron and SSgt Vincent Cruz of Communications Support Company. Second place went to GySgts Richard Melim of H&HS and Robert Lenkowski of Marine Air Base Squadron-24. GySgts Marc Wilkinson and James Diggs, both of Marine Fighter Attack Squadron-232, tied for third, and fourth place went to the novice double winners GySgt Mario Vasquez and SSgt James Ray for Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-262.

The first Windward Marathon will be held June 14. Volunteers are needed to work at five aid stations that require 20 people per station from 6 to 10 a.m. All clubs or organizations (youth groups, teen clubs, girl scouts and boy scouts) and interested military units are invited to contact Dan Dufrene at 257-3108 or 257-3258.

The final organizational meeting for Intramural tennis is May 28 at 1 p.m. in the Family Theater Lobby. For more information contact Special Services' Jerry Price at 257-3592 or 257-3108.

PARENTS: Help Your Child Read Better — Now!

Learn how a summer program can give your child new success in school. Reading Progress summer study program will teach your son or daughter to read, and to read better.

BACK TO BASICS

We offer no excuses. When we accept your child for instruction, we have accepted the responsibility of teaching him to read better. We get results. The ability to read at full capacity is your youngster's best insurance for success in school. The reading habits your child is developing during these crucial school years will either help or hinder him the rest of his life.

FREE COMPUTER TESTING

Your child is given a computer-scored, diagnostic reading test before enrollment. The computer printout will tell you, and will show us, the exact reading skills your child knows, and the skills he needs to learn. After he is tested; you have a conference with his Reading Progress counselor. You receive the test results in clear, plain talk — no holding back. If we feel we can help, your child is put in the proper class for complete attention to his individual needs. You will be very pleased by the results. Ask your neighbor, perhaps her youngster is one of the more than two thousand children we have taught in Hawaii private schools.

Rattan Accessories in a Candy Store?

Yes! It's Jo Ann (the candy lady). If you are looking for an unusual but reasonably priced wall decoration, we have it at the Kailua Candy Co. How about a large handmade wicker coolie hat, only $9.00. Or a woven bamboo leaf shaped fan, only $10.00, and a bamboo rug beater for $6.00. We even have a large woven fish scooper for $4.50. We also have a fine selection of rattan shelves and decorative baskets. Come on in for a free cup of coffee and a taste of Hawaii's finest homemade chocolates. (The coffee could be the best you've ever tried!)

Paradise Pastimes

WITHIN THE GATES — The Koolau Players are presenting, by popular demand, "Dinner Theatre" June 5, 6, 13 and 14 in the ballroom at the Windward Enlisted Club.

Each night will be an evening of three one-act plays.

The first play, "Next," poses the question, "Does a 48-year-old man have a right to object to being called for an induction physical — given by a female sergeant, no less?"

"Sorry, Wrong Number" should keep the audience wondering will the invalid woman ever get through to the right number to prevent the imminent murder of an unsuspecting victim.

The third play is "The Restaurant." Alice and Norman locate a back-alley restaurant listed in their tourguide, but will they overcome the language barrier before they die of starvation?

Open to all military members and their families and guests, tickets for the Dinner Theatre are $5.95 for a buffet dinner and show.

Call the Combined Club Systems Office at 257-3361 for reservations.

For more information, contact Jeni Ferdinand at 262-5606 or Penny Johnson at 254-3890.

The MCAS Kaneohe Bay Teen Centre sponsors "A Day on the Beach with Steve Starr," Sunday from 2 until 9 p.m. at the Heleloa Beach.

LCpl Steve Butler, alias Steve Starr, will provide music and other entertainment. For more information, call the Teen Centre at 257-3501.

Taste Bonus!

Research generates consistent proof that low tar MERIT matches taste of higher tar brands.

Five years ago, low tar MERIT sparked a whole new era in smoking by delivering taste way out of proportion to tar.

Until MERIT, no low tar cigarette had been able to prove it could match the taste of higher tar brands.

Millions Endorse MERIT Taste

Switching studies confirm it. 90% of smokers switching to MERIT are coming directly from higher tar cigarettes.

Fact: Since its introduction, MERIT has gained more smokers than any other low tar brand!

MERIT: Taste Success

MERIT continues to win higher tar smokers with its unique combination of taste, ease of switch, and long-term satisfaction.

A combination that appeals to millions of smokers who have switched to—and stayed with—the first proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking.

The momentum builds: MERIT is changing the future of smoking.
