

TOP STORY

River Assault 2015

By Staff Sgt. Brian Raley, 343rd MPAD

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. – River Assault 2015 is a multiphase training event hosted in Ft. Chaffee, Ark., to train engineer Soldiers on an array of skills. Army Reserve Soldiers and units train alongside active duty units in an effort to share knowledge in a unique training environment only found at River Assault events.

Video Story

Follow the 416th TEC on Social Media

NEWS

Army Reserve defends local homes

By Staff, 301st MEB

AIRWAY HEIGHTS, Wash. – Soldiers from the Army Reserve's 659th Engineer Company responded rapidly to a request from the Fairchild Air Force Base Fire Department for assistance in fighting a nearby wildland fire, which threatening a residential area. News Story

River masters piece it together like a puzzle

By Staff Sgt. Carrie Castillo, 416th TEC

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. – Bridges serve a straight path for troops and vehicles to go from point A to B. But how do they cross a river, from shore to shore, without a bridge to traverse? News Story

Reserve engineers draw up relationship with Department of Public Works

By Sgt. Christian Soto, 416th TEC

FORT HUNTER LIGGETT, Calif. – Approximately a dozen U.S. Army Reserve Soldiers who specialize in survey and design assisted the Department of Public Works (DPW) with multiple projects worth millions of dollars. News Story

Army Reserve, active Army engineers bridge the training gap

By Sgt. 1st Class Darrin McDufford, 416th TEC

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. – River Assault gave the Army Reserve and active units an opportunity to share knowledge and familiarize with each other. News Story

