Jersey's own takes Region 1 Best Warrior

By Staff Sgt. Wayne Woolley, New Jersey National Guard Public Affairs

Ask New Jersey Army National Guard Spc. Joseph Garback what he likes best about being a Soldier and he answers without hesitation.

"I just love getting dirty," Garback said.

The 22-year-old field artilleryman had plenty of opportunities for that last week at the National Guard Region 1 Best Warrior Competition, as torrential rains turned Connecticut's Camp Niantic Army National Guard Training Center into a giant mud puddle.

That apparently put Garback in his comfort zone because he won the competition and secured a chance to represent New Jersey next month at the National Guard-wide Best Warrior competition in Massachusetts. It was New Jersey's first win at a regional Best Warrior competition in recent memory.

The three-day event is designed to test Soldier skills in a way that pushes competitors to their physical and mental limits. The physical portion includes a PT test, a stress shooting event, an urban assault course, and a 12-mile road march. The cerebral part of the event includes day and night land navigation, a board before command sergeant majors, and a role playing exercise where competitors were evaluated on their ability to help a fellow Soldier contemplating suicide.

Even though Garback usually works out twice a day, he conceded the road march over hilly terrain was a challenge. He got his motivation to keep pushing from Spc. Shaquille Phillips-Breedlove, a fellow trooper from Alpha Company of the 3-112th Field Artillery.

"He was shoving bananas and Cliff Bars at me the whole time," Garback said with a laugh.

Garback, who grew up in Sewell and graduated from Washington Township High School, didn't take much time to celebrate after the competition. He returned to New Jersey just in time for final exams at Rutgers University, where he's majoring in criminal justice and Spanish.

His plan over the next few weeks is to keep up with his normal training regimen, which includes training in the martial art of Muay Thai, as well as some long walks with his ruck sack in preparation for the next phase of Best Warrior.

Spc. Joseph Garback of the New Jersey Army National Guard was named the National Guard 2016 Region 1 Soldier of the Year at Camp Niantic, Conn., May 5, 2016. Garback earned the title after competing in the Region 1 Best Warrior Competition May 2-5, 2016. Garback along with the 2016 Region 1 NCO of the year will go on to represent the region at the National Best Warrior Competition in Massachusetts in June. (U.S. Army National Guard photo by Sgt. He's not putting too much pressure on himself for the next stage either.

"I just want to have fun with it," he said. "You can't take yourself too seriously. Usually, when you're doing what you like and having fun, good things happen."
