

THE SUN NEVER SETS ON THE 10TH MOUNTAIN PATCH

April 2019, Vol. 2 Issue 3

President Donald J. Trump presents the Medal of Honor to U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Travis W. Atkins' son on his behalf on March 27 in the East Room of the White House.

OUR LEGACY

STAFF SGT. TRAVIS ATKINS

On the morning of June 1, 2007, Staff Sgt. Travis Atkins' squad was conducting route security in Iraq when his team observed two suspected insurgents.

Atkins led his vehicle to the suspected insurgents in an attempt to intercept and search them. One of the insurgents began to resist the search and hand-to-hand combat ensued.

Realizing the insurgent had explosives under his clothes, Atkins fought the insurgent, keeping him from reaching the suicide vest he was wearing.

As the hand-to-hand battle continued, the insurgent was able to reach the suicide vest.

At that point, Atkins wrapped the insurgent up and threw him to the ground, away from his Soldiers who were standing a few feet away and still unaware of the suicide vest.

Realizing the danger, Atkins threw himself on top of the suicide bomber, pinning him to the ground and shielding his Soldiers from the explosion while bearing the brunt of the blast as the bomb detonated.

In this critical and selfless act of valor, which mortally wounded him, Atkins saved the lives of three other Soldiers who were with him.

STAFF SGT. ATKINS MEDAL OF HONOR CEREMONY

President Donald J. Trump presented the Medal of Honor to U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Travis W. Atkins' son, Trevor Oliver, on his behalf March 27 in the East Room of the White House.

Atkins' mother and father, Elaine and Jack, were also present at the ceremony.

In honor of Staff Sgt. Travis Atkins being awarded the Medal of Honor for his bravery, selfless service and sacrifice, the 2nd Battalion, 14th Infantry Regiment, who are currently deployed to Afghanistan, conducted the Staff Sgt. Atkins hero Workout of the Day in his honor.
