The Department of Defense Education Activity director has approved the shifting of school openings to Aug. 24 on Fort Stewart to allow additional time for staff changes to support the new virtual learning option. The decision was made in close coordination with installation commanders, the local senior military leadership, and DODEA Southeast District and DODEA Americas Regional leadership.

“The Southeast District is committed to continue to deliver quality instruction to our students,” said Mr. Gregory Bull, the DODEA Southeast District Chief of Staff. “The shift in the calendar will allow us more time to continue to coordinate with DODEA Headquarters in order to make staffing changes to support all students participating in the various learning options.”

The 2020-2021 school year will look different across DODEA as our schools reopen in a “new normal” environment due to COVID-19, if local health protection conditions allow for it. School staff at Fort Benning and Fort Stewart will report August 17, and students will begin in remote learning on August 24.

As per current Department of Defense guidance, if an installation is in HPCON Charlie, schools will be closed to students, and schools will begin the year in remote learning. Both of these installations are in HPCON C. In remote learning, students receive the classroom curriculum from their assigned brick and mortar teacher, through digital programs.

For more information, visit DODEA's Ensuring a Safe and Health Return to School guide at dodea.edu/upload/Ensuring-a-Safe-and-Healthy-Return-to-School.pdf and the DoDEA Return to School guide at dodea.edu/returntoschool.cfm.

In addition to Fort Stewart DODEA schools, Long county schools have also shifted their school start date to Sept. 8 for virtual and in-person learning. For information visit longcountypa.com.

3rd ID welcomes deputy commanding general for support

Master Sgt. Shelia L. Cooper
3rd ID Public Affairs

The 3rd Infantry Division welcomed Col. John Cushing as the deputy commanding general for support during a ceremony Aug. 3, at the Main Post Chapel on Fort Stewart.

Commanding generals of each of the 11 active-duty divisions in the Army today have a "Command Group" to help them command and control their division. This command group consists of a command sergeant major, normally two brigadier generals, and a colonel who is the chief of the general's staff. The brigadier generals are called deputy commanding generals, with one designated as the deputy commanding general for support and the other designated deputy commanding general for maneuver.

Maj. Gen. Tony Aguto, commander of the 3rd ID, Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield resided over the event.

"It is truly a great day to welcome an individual that has done the right things the right way and focus on making their units and the people around them better," Aguto said. "John served in several different positions within 3rd ID, from the 1st Tank Company commander, and Recon Troop commander with 2nd Brigade here at Fort Stewart and again as the executive officer with 3rd Brigade at Fort Benning."

After leaving Fort Benning, Cushing commanded the 194th Training Brigade at Fort Benning and 1st Recruiting Brigade at Fort Georgia G. Meade, Maryland before returning to the Marne Division.

"Cushing just relinquished the mantle of command of the 1st Recruiting Brigade and has returned to the Marne Division once again to serve as my deputy commanding general for support - a job I know he is more than suited to handle," Aguto said.

The deputy commander for support serves as the 3rd ID principal deputy to assist him in fulfilling his responsibilities and ensure continuity of day-to-day operations. The scope of these duties includes the full spectrum of 3rd ID's interests to include logistics, maintenance, sustainment and administration.

During the ceremony, Cushing spoke about his Family.

"My name is John Cushing and I am a Dogface Soldier," said Cushing. "This is Marla and I's third time to the 3rd Infantry Division. As we drove around post we noticed the Warriors Walk which quickly reminds each and every one of us why we serve: we serve to make a difference, for the Soldiers and Families and to do everything we can to make sure we don't plant any more trees."

During his remarks Cushing stated that it is important for leaders to do their job.

Desert Rogues welcome noncommissioned officers

Spc William Griffen
1ABCT Public Affairs

Soldiers assigned to 1st Battalion, 64th Armored Regiment, 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, were formally welcomed into the corps of non-commissioned officers during an induction ceremony Aug. 5 on Fort Stewart.

The ceremony is a time-honored tradition for Soldiers who earn NCO chevrons.

“Becoming a noncommissioned officer is a rite of passage that dates back 245 years,” said Command Sgt. Maj. Michael Hall, senior enlisted leader of 1st Bn., 64th Armored Regt. “The induction of our newest sergeants instills a sense of pride and confidence while engraining their duties and responsibilities deep within them.”

During the ceremony, the attendees honored their fallen comrades who preceded the inductees, then the inductees were introduced to the responsibilities of each level of enlisted leadership.

Staff Sgt Joseph Moore, guest speaker and former member of 1-64 AR, shared his experience as an NCO, the importance of the ceremony and what the inductees should expect as leaders.

“Soldiers will be looking to you for guidance, answers and mentorship,” Moore said.

The 53 inductees finished their passage into the corps of NCOs by passing under the NCO arch way and stated the Creed of the Noncommissioned Officer.

Sergeants Connor Heim and Andres Loor, inductees assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1-64 AR, were proud to be a part of the tradition, and optimistic about becoming leaders in their company.

“I look forward to having the opportunity to work with Soldiers, and train them to take our place one day,” Heim said.

“I now have the responsibility to train Soldiers to the highest level of readiness at the lowest level of leadership,” Loor said.

Heim and Loor advised other Soldiers who are working towards being NCOs that good communication, trust, confidence and attention to detail are critical attributes to learn.

“I am truly proud of Rogue Nation’s newest sergeants and the impact they will have within the future of our Army and our Nation,” Hall said.

The crew of 2nd Section, 1st Platoon, comprised of Staff Sgt. Daniel Smith, Pfc. Lamar Howe, Sgt. Patrick Duah, Staff Sgt. Victor Simental, Spc Sawyer McCook, Spc Caleb Epps, Sgt Harlin Moody and Spc Jacob Feeney, earned the Top Gun award Aug. 7 on Fort Stewart.

Soldiers assigned to 1st Battalion, 41st Field Artillery, 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team, 3rd Infantry Division, competed in the Top Gun competition for the Top Gun, Top Fire Direction Center awards, and the Expert Gunner Badge.

The competition tested the Soldiers' knowledge and mastery of being a field artillery Soldier.

Leading up to the event, Soldiers executed rigorous training known as artillery tables, during which they conducted written tests, artillery skills proficiency tests and gunner's tests. They also certified on Artillery Table V which includes everything from establishing a gunline, and position area, for artillery to conduct dry-fire missions. These missions are designed to test the Soldiers' at the section level without live firing.

After that, the Soldiers of the Glory Guns battalion moved on to ATVI. This step in the training closely resembles the previous table, yet involves live fire qualification, emergency fire missions, and direct fires.

McCook said he was happy to see all their hard work payed off.

"We trained every day for only about two weeks," Feeney said. "Other batteries had a lot longer to train."

They received a Top Gun muzzle cover and streamer for their guidon.

The 1st Platoon's FDC section, which was comprised of 1st Lt. Clarice Thomas, Staff Sgt. Robert Jubito and Sgt. Donnie C. Robinson, earned the Top Fire Direction Center award. They also received a guidon streamer as well as a FDC antenna flag which is flown proudly on the antenna of their track vehicle.

"I'm proud to achieve Top FDC because I've been chasing it ever since I came to the battalion in 2015," said Jubito. "The knowledge and equipment across the Battalion was pivotal to our success."

The Expert Gunner badge was awarded to staff sergeants John Paul Taylor and Willy Zapata for demonstrating expert proficiency on their howitzer's aiming sight.

"Stay focused on your end-state and goal," said Simental. "Slow is smooth, smooth is fast."

Post library offers alternatives for patrons during COVID

Staff Sgt. Todd Pouliot
50th PAD

Many activities around the Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield communities have been restricted due to COVID-19 preventive measures, to include the George P. Hays Library on Fort Stewart.

The library closed its facility to the public in order to prevent the spread of COVID-19, but library technicians continue to provide patrons with a variety of services.

Among those services are summer reading programs that maintain literacy skills in youth aged community members.

"Children who don't read over the summer tend to slip back on their reading skills, so they start their new school year almost at a disadvantage," said Jacqueline Chappell, George P. Hays Library director. "That's one big thing about having a summer reading program is keeping kids engaged, reading and keeping their skill level up."

The library's summer reading program rewards a prize to top readers in each of four age categories. Since local school districts have delayed the opening of schools, Chappell has extended the summer reading program to Aug.

31, to give participants more time to be able to log their time and earn prizes.

Rather than the traditional method of going to the library to find a book, readers can access the library's online catalog for a specific title, then call to place an order. Library staff pull the book and call back when the order is ready to be picked up.

The library parking lot now has designated spots for curbside service. Library staff wearing face mask and gloves assist patrons at their vehicles.

Another option is to call the library for a surprise bag.

"Just call up and say, 'I've got two kids, one is 5 and one is 10; they like dinosaurs,' or just give us an idea of a topic," said Celine Matthews, a library technician. "Our staff will go and pull relevant items and put a bag together to be picked up."

In addition to books, patrons can also check out video games and movies. Army library account holders have access to more than 40 databases for research on car repair to ancestry, from children's books to academics.

To discover all that the library has to offer, visit StewartHunter.ArmyMWR.com, and follow George P. Hays Library at Fort Stewart on Facebook.

Providers work to prevent personal property loss

Sgt. Laurissa Hodges
3IDSB Public Affairs

The 3rd Infantry Division Sustainment Brigade regularly educates to their Soldiers on the importance of ensuring their barracks and their vehicles are properly secured to mitigate potential property loss from theft.

"Since Jan. 1 of this year there have been more than 167 thefts of either private or government property," said Staff Sgt. David Beaton, a provost sergeant with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Special Troops Battalion, 3IDSB.

More than 130 of the thefts were unsecured and unattended, meaning somebody did not lock something up, Beaton said, noting at least 50 of the cases had gaming systems or televisions that were stolen as well as a large amount of TA-50.

To prevent items from being stolen, Soldiers must ensure that their barracks room door, and windows for first floor residents, are secured at all times when left unattended.

"You should always lock your doors and make sure your belongings are secured," Beaton said. "I know a lot of Soldiers think it's easier to just leave their door unlocked that way they can just come home and open the handle, but just because it makes it easier doesn't make it safer."

An Army physical security regulation was put in place to prevent property loss in barracks room as well as privately owned vehicles.

"Army Regulation 190-51, section 3-14, states that organizational clothing and individual equipment will not be stored in privately owned vehicles," Beaton said. "Individual clothing and equipment of personnel living in troop billets and reserve component personnel will be secured either in a locked wall locker or footlocker or in a locked duffel bag, further secured to the building structure, or a separate locked room."

Another way to mitigate property loss is by filling out a high-value item list.

"Anything over a few hundred dollars is a high-value item," Beaton said. "A PlayStation 4, an Xbox and TV all have serial numbers on them just like government equipment. So, you take that serial number and you put in on the high value-items inventory list and that gets put in through the chain of command."

In an event there was signs of forced entry and high-value items are stolen, the high-value inventory sheet can be taken to the police station.

"The PMO can generate a police report and put the serial numbers into the Georgia system so if anyone tries to take the system somewhere to sell it would pop up and the person would be arrested," Beaton said.

Leaders with 3IDSB apply an added measure to enforce the standard by ensuring they are regularly checking their Soldiers' barracks rooms.

"I do barracks checks once every other week to make sure the Soldier's quality of life is good," said Sgt. 1st class Bryan Bigley, an Information Technology Supervisor with HHC, STB, 3IDSB. "I check for things they may not be looking for as well as ensuring their belongings are secured and their doors are locking."

A way leaders can get their Soldiers to understand the importance of properly securing their gear is by ensuring that they know how to properly secure their equipment in accordance with the regulations and local installation policy.

"I make sure my Soldiers understand the importance of securing their things by having conversation with them like when I come into a room for room inspection and they have a lock and it's not locked," Bigley said. "I just let them know that when they are not there for the day who do they think is watching their stuff for them. You are signed for the stuff you are responsible for it."

The responsibility for property loss is on the individual, but a shared responsibility with engaged leadership is also important in the accountability process.

"We teach Soldiers accountability for their military equipment and it is also important for us to teach them to secure and account for their personal equipment the same way," Beaton said. "I think that by providing the Soldiers with that information as well as ensuring that leaders are involved in checking the Soldier's living areas will go a long way to mitigate property loss."

Winn ACH command team presented Commander's Cup

Pat Young
Winn ACH Public Affairs

The Winn Army Community Hospital command team of Col. Julie Freeman and Sgt. Maj. Jason Conner were presented the 2019 Commander's Cup in a brief office visit Aug. 6 by the Directorate of Family Morale, Welfare and Recreation Sports Director Jacob Miller.

The Commander's Cup is presented each year to the unit who earns enough point culminating from various events and sporting activities on Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield.

Due to the ongoing coronavirus pandemic, the presentation ceremony was delayed and the cup was presented using protective measures: wearing masks and physical separation of six feet.

The award was earned in 2019 following several outstanding performances of Soldiers from Team Winn including intramural basketball; 7 vs 7 flag football; golf; and volleyball.

Winn's mobilization manager, Sgt. 1st Class Christopher Johnson said U.S.

Army Medical Department Activity Soldiers performed well all year, beginning with a team-up with the 385th Military Police Battalion that led to a victory in a convincing fashion. He also noted the Winn basketballers helped lead the Fort Stewart Team in a victory against Hunter in the 3rd Infantry Division Basketball Championship.

MEDDAC also fielded two golf teams for 2019 tournaments.

"One of the teams won the league," Johnson said. "Helping MEDDAC regain the overall Commander's Cup lead."

Johnson said while Team Winn narrowly missed the softball playoffs, they ended the season well with a 5-2 record.

"A strong performance in volleyball allowed Winn to hold their lead going into the final league of the year," Johnson said.

He said with two other battalions on Winn's heels they started 7 vs 7 flag football season. And though they didn't win that league, they earned enough points to secure the overall victory."

Winn Army Community Hospital Commander Col. Julie Freeman and Senior Enlisted Leader Sgt. Maj. Jason Conner celebrate with several athletes of Winn ACH after being presented the Commander's Cup on Fort Stewart.

athlete with Team Winn said it was really good to compete with all the different battalions and brigades around the division.

"It just shows how competitive we are here a medic, Burdette said. "It was great opportunity for all the Soldiers to get out there and show their athleticism and we brought the trophy home."

Freeman said she was extremely proud of the Winn Soldiers.

"I think their performance in the 2019 season is an example of the strength and discipline found in our Soldiers," Freeman said.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Facing our weakness

Capt. DooSoo Lee

2-7 IR, 1ABCT chaplain

At the end of my three-hour ordination interview, the examiners praised my written answers to the required questions. One of the interviewers said he was truly inspired by the story of my spiritual experience, and another said he loved my perspective regarding current social issues, and another said she liked my theological position for the modern biblical study.

The atmosphere of interview was peaceful and successful until one of the interviewers presented the question that would change the mood of the interview. She asked me very simply, "What is your weakness?" I was frozen. I could not answer the question right away. Something sucked up the ideas from my brain. My lips were zipped. She said, "Let me ask again, DooSoo. How do you understand your weakness?" Then I realized that I have rarely thought about my weaknesses. I focused on my strengths in ministry, myself and my Family. Had she found a pastor candidate on his "high horse" blinded with arrogance? Is this candidate aware of his human weakness? Does he think he is a perfect pastoral hero?

Many have asked me about what I can do. Many, including myself, have had interest only in our strengths. I can't remember anyone addressing my weaknesses until that moment. It was a great, yet, challenging question for me. This question gave me a chance to think about myself, my weaknesses, and who God is with the understanding of who I am.

Near the end of the evaluation, my interviewer asked, "Who, in this world, is perfect in everything?" I answered, "No one." I countered. She responded, "30 years in ministry, and I am still struggling with my weaknesses - my difficult personality, my boring spirituality and my inability to connect with the current generation through modern media. Thirty years of weakness produced trust in God's power to do the impossible.

God makes me whole through weakness." She then opened the Bible quoting Psalm 46:10 "Stop your striving and recognize that I am God!" These words of wisdom touched my heart and called me to be humble before God and humanity.

With COVID-19, we are challenged to think about our weakness; how small we are in this world and how incapable to overcome this invisible attacker in our own strength. Do you feel incapable and defenseless? God gives you capacity and strength to face all challenges. Why do we have to understand our weaknesses? When we understand our weaknesses we may then know what needs to change. No one conquers weakness without understanding and help. What does our weakness tell us about who we are and who God is?

Friends, in our weakness we find help from God, Family and friends. Do not be afraid. Be still and know that God is with us, and be thankful for what God has done for us and what He will do in the future. Believe that God will conquer our weaknesses.

Sustainment Brigade prepared for hurricane response

The 3rd Infantry Sustainment Brigade is unique because of its variety of Soldiers who bring quality qualifications from ready to roll missions to recovery efforts for natural disasters. With the current hurricane season in effect for coastal Georgia and the southeast U.S., these capabilities are able to be leveraged to support relief efforts in the event of significant hurricane impact to the area.

“What makes our brigade standout is that we have more of a variety of qualified fuelers, financial operations personnel and recovery specialists,” said 1st Lt. Nate Wakefield, a hurricane support operations officer planner with the, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Special Troops Battalion, 3ID SB. “We specialize more in ensuring more of the support aspect of that plus it’s within our name.”

For hurricane response operations there are 5 hurricane conditions that are monitored. Each condition represents an observed hurricane-level event and the organization monitors its impact to the installation and its operations.

“HURCON 5 takes its place from June first to November thirtieth, that is when hurricane season begins and ends,” said Wakefield. “In this phase we identify Soldiers to be placed as a stay behind element in preparation for landfall when it does happen. These Soldiers are tasked for arms room guards and fuelers to ensure our generators are continuously running.”

As the HURCON descends to HURCON 4, the unit prepares additional assets and Soldiers to ensure that the correct level of support is being utilized and that the assets to perform the necessary tasks are staged and ready for support operations.

At HURCON 4 companies within the brigade begin staging for refueling support via the brigade’s bulk-fuel systems. Additionally units within the brigade begin to fill Handling System Compatible Water Tank Rack and water buffalos in case they are needed for recovery operations.

“In the event of a hurricane since 226th Composite Supply Company is away, the 135th Quartermaster Company will execute all the bulk fuel requirements on demand by providing the diesel for civilian generators and JP8 generators or additional fuels for certain civilian equipment,” said Chief Warrant Officer 2 Shanique Clarke, the chief of petroleum systems technician with HHC, STB, 3ID SB. “For bulk water, 396th Composite Truck Company within this fiscal year is tasked with providing bulk water support and they will do that using the 2,000 gallon water compatible tank rack.”

The unit also conducts personnel administration coordination with the division operations center to account for personnel locations as they are either released to prepare for the incoming hurricane or are sent to conduct support operations missions for the installation or surrounding area.

At HURCON 3, which is 72 hours from expected landfall, the unit begins conducting direct support with the garrison Directorate of Public Works for refueling missions to ensure that generators around the installation are ready. Additionally, Soldiers tasked to support the Army Field Support Battalion will assist in the movement of personnel from the installation to a designated safe area if required.

Cpt. Joshua Moore and Staff Sgt. O'Neil Davis, both with assigned to brigade operations, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Special Troops Battalion, 3ID SB, review the hurricane condition support process for the brigade.

As the timeline condition for HURCON 2 is reached, the 287th Field Feeding Company will begin preparing to conduct meal support from a potential field feeding site via their mobile kitchen trailers. Soldiers throughout the unit additionally either continue evacuation operations or their assigned missions in support of the installation.

HURCON 1 is imminent landfall within 24-12 hours and the unit places a heavy recovery squad on standby for recovery operations. This phase lasts a period of 12 hours prior to the hurricane making landfall to 12 hours after the winds of 50 knots or higher dissipate.

Following the dissipation of the winds, the heavy recovery element begins assisting the installation with removal of debris from the installation and other necessary recovery operations. If needed the other sustainment and support elements will be release to conduct their missions in support to the installation as well and begin returning to normal operations.

“We will have a priority of work established for recovery operations and we will also initiate the recall of our critical work force personnel,” said Wakefield. “We pretty much continue on, get everyone back to home base safely and everyone is accounted for.”
